

New plans unveiled for town center project

by Arlene Surprenant
The Rt.62-129 project for Wilmington Center may yet become a reality if Wilmington citizens go along with one of the alternate proposals offered by the consulting firm Wallace, Floyd, Associates Inc. The three alternate plans, which were strictly conceptual in nature, were outlined for members of the Wilmington Redevelopment Authority (WRA) at their meeting last Thursday.

The favored third alternative proposes an at-grade intersection at the corner of Rt.62 and Rt.38/129 with two jug handle connectors running from Kirk Street to Rt.38 through the Bay Banks parking lot. This option was viewed as more "minor in scope" than the one outlined by the state Department of Public Works. Those present also felt it would have less impact on neighbors, businesses, and the town, as a whole; it would better ease traffic congestion; and it would better address a relocation of town center.

Residents at the DPW's design hearing last year had largely disapproved of the state's plan. They said the overpass, 22 foot high bridge design, and the proposed connector road would only shift the problem to a new intersection and destroy the rural character of the town. They called the plan an "overkill."

For the most part, WRA consultants agreed. Bruce Campbell, who heads his own traffic consulting firm and who once worked for the DPW, said the state proposed a "highway interchange" rather than an intersection which would still address Wilmington's traffic problems.

Consultants outlined some disadvantages they saw in the DPW design. They said it denied the opportunity for a town center to develop as a town center. They said it diminished the possibility of providing a strong connection between a town center and an MBTA rail station. They felt the design was inconsistent "in scale and operations" with the immediate area and it wouldn't work from a traffic perspective since the design would re-create traffic problems at another intersection.

Laurie Hagan, who conducted traffic studies for sub-contractor Bruce Campbell, said she found there were "errors and inconsistent counts" in the DPW traffic study as well. These included errors in traffic flow during peak hours. While DPW studies claimed morning traffic flowed north, Hagan contended the majority of traffic actually flowed south toward Boston. Hagan said she projected a good level of traffic service until the year 2010 while the DPW only projected the same until the year 2000. She added her counts were more up to date since they were taken in 1987 while the DPW had taken its counts in 1985.

The other two plans outlined by Wallace, Floyd were a minimum build proposal with no connector roads and a plan similar to the third option, except the connector road tied into Middlesex Avenue. In all plans, Rt.38/129 would be widened from two lanes to four and there would be traffic signals proposed at various intersections.

In studying the town, the consultants felt that Rotary Park was "a real amenity" which could be tied into plans for a viable town center. It would be adjacent to the connector roads and allow for some creative planning. The consultants felt Heritage Common had the type of Early American look which could work in a new center area. And they said there are currently municipal uses in the center area which could continue to draw residents.

When questioned about temporary routes during a construction period, WFA Project Manager Wendy Landman said it was assumed a Bailey bridge would be built next to the present bridge for traffic during construction. The DPW had proposed using Butters Row as a by-pass during construction.

Campbell said he met informally with DPW officials to outline the third option and get some feedback from them. Reportedly, officials said they would "reactivate their interest in the project" if the alternative proposal would indeed do what Campbell claimed and have "considerably" less impact on the Bruce Campbell displays a sketch of one of three proposals for road improvements in Wilmington Center. Campbell is pointing to the start of a new road which would run from Church Street to Main Street, coming out through the Bay Banks parking lot. The horizontal line represents Main Street. The vertical line at left is Middlesex Avenue. Behind Campbell's arm is Church Street.

Selectmen favor third alternative on center plans

by Arlene Surprenant
One of three alternate proposals to the DPW's Town Center project received favorable reaction from Wilmington selectmen Monday night. Most of the attention was focused on the third option outlining an at-grade intersection and two connector roads.

Dan Ballou praised consultants from Wallace, Floyd, Associates Inc and Bruce Campbell and Associates as well as members of the Wilmington Redevelopment Authority for addressing issues which had been raised by residents.

"You're coming to us with the feedback we've been looking for; it looks like we're heading in the right direction," he said.

After the detailed presentation, Selectman Jim Stewart said it was the best proposal he had seen thus far. He added, though, he wanted to be convinced further that traffic projections for smooth traffic flow along Rt. 38 were correct.

While Chairman Bob Cain suggested yet another alternative with a road running parallel to Church Street to avoid wetland impact, Michael McCoy said afterwards he was keeping an open mind on the proposal.

During the discussion, consultant Bruce Campbell said that between Thursday's initial presentation before the redevelopment authority and Monday night, more details have come to light. He said these had to do with, bridge clearance and design, and sight distance along Rte. 62 towards Church Street. Campbell said he expects to meet soon with DPW officials to confirm the bridge design and address the new issues.

Project Manager Wendy Landman explained many of the differences between the DPW design and the favored option. She told those present she welcomed input and, basically, she wanted people to think about the alternate proposals, which are still only concepts.

WRA Chairman Jay Donovan said the drawings are expected to be semi-finalized by next month, barring any problems which might be encountered. He added his board hopes to be able to present a united front to the state, in conjunction with Wilmington residents and town officials, in the near future.

Manager presents $31m budget

by Arlene Surprenant
Wilmington Town Manager Buzz Stapezynski Monday night recommended a budget totaling $31,758,656 for fiscal 1989, a figure which represents a 5.7 percent increase over the 1988 appropriation of $30,046,320. The budget, he explained to selectmen, is reflective of "cautious growth" both regionally and locally. The caution is based on the uncertain state of the national economy, he added.

Highlighting the proposed town budget of $16,176,100 are appropriations for four additional patrolmen to establish a new town traffic division ($89,320), legal services for ongoing Appellate Tax Board cases ($50,000), a pavement management system to develop an inventory of road conditions ($30,000), and the expansion of Wildwood Cemetery ($29,958).

Three of the biggest town expenditures are in fixed costs. These include $1,161,949 for employee health insurance, $963,759 for rubbish collection and disposal, and $380,000 for sewer assessment expenses under Mass. Water Resource Authority. These three fixed costs together are projected to increase approximately 14.3 percent over the FY 1988 costs. Blue Cross/Blue Shield costs alone have increased by approximately 30 percent, the town manager said.

Stapezynski touched on the solid waste budget which he said is a big concern. He said that account is increasing due to escalating costs and increases in the town's annual tonnage. He said he will seek some relief by looking into recycling programs to divert some of the solid waste from NESWC.

The recommended budget includes the sum of $700,000 for warrant articles. Besides replacement of several trucks, police cruisers, and other rolling stock, the biggest items in this category are $150,000 for technical assistance toward the creation of a municipal light department; $65,500 for debt service for a 20 year bond for four street betterments; and $110,000 for capital outlay for the Wilmington School Department. The $65,500 debt service will only be incurred if voters go along with the street improvement requests at the annual town meeting.

The total recommended education budget comes to $12,517,371. Of this total, $11,584,987 is slated for the Wilmington School Department, $910,784 for the Shawsheen Tech, and $21,600 for obligations to provide vocational training for several students at Essex Agricultural School. One or two people present Monday night took note that there was quite a difference between what the schools requested and Stapezynski's final figure. They asked to come to town meeting with a united front.

The proposed budget will be funded through taxes and $12,311,290 in available funds. These funds are obtained from local receipts and state aid, which

Who will run the carnival?

The Wilmington Fourth of July Committee will meet on Tuesday night to screen applications from organizations interested in running the Fourth of July carnival. Fourth of July Chairman Jack Cushing said that two organizations, Pop Warner and the American Legion, have expressed an interest to date.

The carnival has been part of the town's Fourth of July Committee since 1980, when the town celebrated its 250th anniversary. But last year, relations became strained between the carnival operator and the committee. In November, the committee voted to discontinue the carnival.

Two weeks ago, however, the committee voted to allow a third party to operate the carnival. The committee will only accept proposals from incorporated groups with sufficient resources to run the carnival.

MORTGAGE ALTERNATIVES
 Many home-buyers resist Adjustable Rate Mortgages (ARMs) on principle. Memories of soaring interest rates and jitters about the future make the uncertainty of knowing exactly what mortgage payments will be attractive to some buyers. In addition, ARMs have received some unfavorable coverage in the consumer press.

While an ARM is not for everyone, it is certainly worth discussing with your lender. Most of the ARM programs now being offered have overcome the objections for which they have been criticized in the press. There are usually limits to the amount they can go up at each adjustment period and over the life of the loan, making the maximum amounts predictable. Depending on the program you select, the payments could be considerably lower than the thirty-year fixed mortgages during the first two to five years of the loan. An ARM can save you money or substantially increase your purchasing power.

If there's a move in your future, the real estate experts at Kelley & Kompany are ready to serve you. Call us at 658-4171 or drop by our office at 11 Middlesex Avenue (Suite #10) in Wilmington

Dick Dellarciprete and Shawn McGee talk with water commissioners on affordable housing. Behind them are two interested Legionaires, Commander Joe Steen and Paul Haught, of American Legion Post 136, Wilmington.

Affordable housing proposal goes before water commissioners

A proposed site for affordable housing in Wilmington was discussed January 21 at the meeting of the Wilmington Water and Sewer Commissioners. Dick Dellarciprete and Shawn McGee of the First Homes Trust of Billerica were introduced by Danny Gillis of the Wilmington Housing Authority. The men had plans showing proposed homes for the site to show the commissioners.

The proposed site is off lower Main Street, near the Woburn city line. A portion of the land has already been given to the Wilmington Post of the American Legion, as the site for a new building.

The discussion can be described as "hard nosed." Gillis started with a report on some of the "affordable housing" meetings he had attended recently. Commissioner Arthur

Smith followed with a discussion of the gravel excavations which had taken place at the site proposed.

After Dellarciprete and McGee made their presentation they heard again from Smith. They will get all the help that the water department can give, but they will pay for it. Smith made that clear.

"We do not get our funding from the tax rate."

Seventy-five duplexes are being planned as affordable housing. They will provide for 150 families. McGee and Dellarciprete said some would be two bedroom and some three bedroom.

The price they said, would be $75,000 for the three bedroom, and $65,000 for the two bedroom. The interest rates would be eight percent instead of 10 percent, Gillis told the commissioners.

More work to be done at high school

Work on the renovation of Wilmington High School has been in a holding pattern for several months. Phase I of the renovation has been completed, but other work remains -- along with some problems.

Problem number one is the new elevators. Two elevators were installed to make the building handicapped accessible. One is in a corner adjacent to the old cafeteria, the other is in the old gymnasium, to provide access to the new shops.

Although the elevators have been completed, they have never been granted certificates of inspection, and the Public Buildings Dept. does not have keys to them.

A second problem is in the new gymnasium. Operable backboards were installed, but they do not operate. They are in the down position, allowing basketball games to continue while the matter is investigated.

Some major work remains to be done in the school under Phase II. New windows will be installed in the building this summer.

New bleachers for the football field will go out to bid in March, with completion scheduled for early September.

Renovations of the auditorium will go out to bid in late summer. Also in the works are the replacement of several doors or the hardware on same.

Shawsheen Tech adult ed

If you've procrastinated about that decision to take an adult education course, you're not too late to sign up for several classes offered by the Adult Education Program at Shawsheen Tech.

A 15-hour Electrical Code Education course that fulfills a state mandate, will be held at Shawsheen for licensed electricians. It will cover grounding, low voltage wiring and changes in updates for the 1987 Electrician's Code Book. It will run Mondays and Wednesdays from 7 to 10 p.m. for two and one-half weeks. To accommodate schedules, the course runs in four sections giving attendees a choice of dates. Those with starting dates of Feb. 10, March 7 and March 23 still list openings.

Always popular, Basic Word Processing is a 30 hour program offering training on a Wang word processor OIS 140. The Monday/Wednesday session that begins March 7 has openings. Those familiar with the fundamentals of word processing can sign up for Advanced Word Processing (starting date March 8) which will introduce glossaries and special applications.

New for 1988 is Advanced Home Computer" (beginning March 8) for those who took the Introduction to Home Computers session last fall, or those familiar with the basics of home computers. Radio Shack TRS-80 computers are used. For neophytes, Introduction to Home Computers (starting March 7) is being offered as well. This course explains how computers work, how they are used, and gives examples of home and office applications.

For more information, call 667-2111 between 6 and 10 p.m. Monday through Thursday.

McCoy protests, saying letter didn't reflect actual motion

by Arlene Surprenant

A letter which Selectman Michael McCoy felt was misleading caused him to address some angry comments to the chairman of his board Monday night.

The controversy stemmed from a letter written by Chairman Robert Cain to Robert Johnson, Chief Engineer of the DPW. In that letter Cain reportedly asked the DPW to put the Butters Row Bridge reconstruction project on hold indefinitely, something which would allow for the possibility of reactivating the project at a later date. The letter allegedly reflected the view of the entire board of selectmen.

McCoy and a few Butters Row residents in attendance claimed the letter did not give an accurate account of the vote of the selectmen at a prior meeting.

"God damn it, that was not my motion," McCoy said of the letter's content. McCoy reiterated that he had made a simple, two line motion to oppose the construction of a new bridge, period. He said this was in keeping with the will of the neighbors at the meeting that night. He added when other selectmen tried to amend his motion, he stood firm until his motion was voted unanimously.

"I'm highly insulted that you sent this," McCoy told Cain, adding he had had "no right" to give the wrong impression to the state.

Cain replied the intent of the motion, as he saw it, was to hold up any construction of a new bridge but not close the door if residents from another part of town, for instance, requested that the board reconsider its vote at a later date.

The other selectmen said they never saw a copy of the letter but they remembered the consensus was to do nothing with the bridge. However, they felt Cain's letter would probably result in the same thing as McCoy's motion: it would stop the project.

Jim Stewart said he remembered clearly that DPW officials at their hearing said they intend to continue working on the bridge design to bring it up to the 25 percent design stage. This design would then be filed away if residents were against the project and only brought out if the bridge was hit by another oversize train.

McCoy asked that a second letter be sent to Johnson explaining his motion. Cain drafted a brief letter as they spoke which received the approval of the entire board.

Tech committee approves $9.6m budget

by Arlene Surprenant

Members of the Shawsheen Tech School Committee unanimously approved a fiscal 1989 budget of $9,654,565 at their meeting last week. The total reflects an 11 percent increase over the FY'88 budget of $8,636,420. Approximately half of the million dollar increase will come from state aid and the other half from the five towns who make up the regional school district.

The largest increases are in the area of salary hikes; fixed costs such as Blue Cross/Blue Shield insurance and bus contract costs; and contract services, which includes residential placement for special needs students and monies to upgrade the tennis court and back parking lot area.

Debt service will decrease by $25,000 next year. Since a new state program will provide grants for shop equipment, this portion of the budget was cut and also reflects a decrease. Some of the remaining funds will go toward an Apple computer basic skills lab for major subjects such as English and math. At last week's meeting, the committee saw fit to add an adjustment counselor to the guidance department and turn down a full time librarian position.

According to Supt/Director Charles Lyons, the recent passage of the vocational school aid bill will go a long way to keep town assessment increases in check. Through the support and efforts of local legislators like Rep. James Miceli, his own school committee members, finance committee chairmen in the member towns, and town officials, the bill was passed, said Lyons, and the Tech will now receive an additional $527,000 in state aid.

Thanks to the bill, Wilmington's assessment will only increase by 7.3 percent instead of the projected 25.5 percent. Last year, Wilmington had an increase of 17.5 percent.

Tewksbury's assessment will only increase by 5.44 percent instead of the projected 23.4 percent. All assessments are based on the number of students who attend the school.

Lyons told the Town Crier he was pleased with the FY'89 budget, which was lower than his recommended budget of $10,035,224. He also praised those who worked hard to push the Voke Aid Bill through the legislature.

"I'm just thrilled with the kind of cooperation we've had. It's a commitment to quality education and it really sends a nice message to the kids we serve here," he said.

It's YOUR Money

by Joyce Briscoe
 Certified Public Accountant

EARLY RETIREMENT WITH YOUR IRA

With all the tightening up of the tax laws, the 1986 tax reform did create one loophole: it's now possible to get money out of your Individual Retirement Account before you're 59-1/2, if you follow certain procedures.

Under general IRA procedures, early withdrawal is subject to a 10 percent penalty, in addition to regular income tax on the money. The new exception waives the penalty as long as the takeout is part of a series of approximately equal withdrawals tied to your life expectancy and that of your beneficiary (similar to mandated withdrawals after 70-1/2). Depending on the total value of your IRA, you might get a nice adjunct to an early-retirement pension.

If you start this early-withdrawal schedule, you must continue with it for at least five consecutive years and until you are at least 59-1/2 years old. If you don't, you are liable to the 10 percent penalty, applied retroactively, to all the withdrawals you've taken. Once you've passed the threshold of age 59-1/2 - five years' programmed withdrawals, you can take out whatever you want.

Fire sweeps through Tewksbury home -- losses but no injuries

Empty

A television set and a new VCR were among the valuables lost in the fire which damaged the Doherty home in Tewksbury on Friday. The Dohertys escaped with only the clothes they wore, but the shoes in the foreground could have come in handy.

by Bill Conlon
Fire ravaged the Doherty home on Anthony Road early Friday morning, but there were no injuries reported in the pre-dawn blaze.

At home when the fire erupted were Norma Doherty, secretary to the Tewksbury Conservation Commission; her husband, Fred; and her son Jim. All three were able to escape the fast-moving fire, still dressed in their nightclothes, but most of their possessions were lost or ruined in the inferno.

Norma said the only injury was to her hands, which were scorched when she tried to pull a picture of her seven children from the living room wall. The picture couldn't be saved in time and was lost.

Among other valuables damaged by the smoky fire were Norma's Hummel figurines, some of them dating back to 1938. The kitchen of the home was a total loss, and the entire upstairs was destroyed.

But insult was added to injury just two days after the fire.

On Sunday, while washing their few remaining clothes at a local laundramat, Jim Doherty's fiancée had her purse stolen. Inside the purse were credit cards, checkbook and various identifications, all of which have to be replaced.

Jim will marry his fiancée, Laura Thompson, in two weeks, Norma said. The theft of the purse just complicates an already confusing situation.

Norma said her insurance coverage is paying to keep the family at the Sheraton Rolling Green in Andover for the next 30 days, after which a trailer will be moved onto the property while renovation is underway. Norma said her seven kids have been "super" in offering shelter, clothing and comfort.

Bob Casey of Wilmington, a general contractor who specializes in fire reconstruction work, began surveying the damage early this week.

Bob Casey of Wilmington makes a video record of the damages to the Doherty home on Anthony Road, Tewksbury, to be used later in rebuilding the house.

Candidate list grows

The filing deadline is still a month away, but candidates continue to line up for the Tewksbury spring election.

Nomination papers may be taken out until Feb. 26, to be listed as a candidate in the April 9 election.

So far, a race for two seats on the board of selectmen has seen seven candidates in the running, and still more could appear.

Incumbent Bill Hallisey will be seeking another term on the board of selectmen, but Paul Sullivan's seat will come open. In hot pursuit of a selectman's chair are School Committee member Lou Carciofi, Town Moderator Bill Hurton, and former ACT chair Lee Toth. New names to the race are Edward S. Taylor, and just this week the name Keith E. Rauseo was added to the race. Stay tuned.

Charles LaBella will be trying for another term on the School Committee, but joining the contest for the two open seats will be Scott Consaul and former school board member James Sullivan.

In the race for a single seat on the planning board, incumbent chairman Bob Fowler will be facing off against Paul McAskill, Jr., and Frank J. Sabbio, whose name first appeared this week.

Even the election for a seat on the Shawsheen regional voke school committee will be a battle, with incumbent J. Peter Downing taking on Raymond A. Scott of Court Street, Tewksbury.

Candidates must return their nomination papers to the town clerk's office by 5 p.m. on Feb. 26 to be placed on the ballot. Each nominee must also show at least 50 signatures from registered voters to complete the form.

Don't park on the street

Parking clerk, Elizabeth Carey, reminds residents of Tewksbury that the overnight parking ban (midnight to 6 a.m.) remains in effect until March 31, 1988.

During a snowstorm, day or night, all vehicles must park off the street or they can be ticketed and this offense carries a $10 fine.

Your cooperation is needed during inclement weather to prevent interference with the snow plowing and sanding and to keep the roads open for fire, police, ambulance, school buses and other emergency vehicles.

Books donated

The Wilmington Committee for Citizens with Disabilities, Inc. (WCCD) has generously donated at least 10 new books to Wilmington Memorial Library.

The books are designed to aid disabled citizens and caregivers and parents of the handicapped, as well.

The books cover a variety of subjects from special adaptive clothing for the handicapped to a number of cookbooks currently on order. They can be found by the main desk. All residents are encouraged to borrow the books and put them to good use.

Students' right to write

by Joe Lenge

Editors of the Wildcat News published by Wilmington High School students reacted angrily to a recent U.S. Supreme Court ruling allowing public school officials to censor school newspapers.

An editorial published in the Wildcat News last week criticized the Supreme Court's decision. A copy of the editorial was sent to the justices of the Supreme Court.

The editorial said, "In our society, no group is more disenfranchised, more impotent, and consequently more deserving of the protections afforded by the Constitution than public school students. No rights are more important to us than freedom of speech and of the press."

The 5-3 ruling was based on a court case involving a publication called Spectrum, produced by journalism students from Hazelwood East High School near St. Louis, Mo.

In May 1983, Principal Robert Reynolds deleted two articles from that paper. One article featured the experiences of three pregnant Hazelwood students; the other analyzed the effects of divorce on students. Although the girls were not named in the first article, Reynolds believed they were identifiable and the material was unsuitable for teen-agers.

Students who worked on Spectrum filed suit contending their First Amendment right to free expression had been violated.

In the past, the Supreme Court has ruled that students "do not shed their constitutional rights at the schoolhouse gate." The latest Supreme Court decision marks the third time in the last three years that students do not have the same constitutional rights as adults.

The court said the students had no legal right to publish the controversial articles because the paper was owned and controlled by the school.

Deadline pressure Joe Linehan, co-editor of the Wildcat News laying out the paper in the composing room.

Writing for the majority, Justice Byron White wrote, "We hold that educators do not offend the First Amendment by exercising editorial control over the style and content of student speech in school-sponsored expressive activities so long as their actions are reasonably related to legitimate pedagogical concerns."

In 1985 the court ruled that students are not protected from "unreasonable searches" under the Fourth Amendment. School officials may search student lockers and purses if they suspect the student may have drugs. The following year the Justices ruled that a student may be suspended for giving a speech that school officials consider disruptive to an orderly school environment.

In dissent to this latest decision, Justice William Brennan wrote, "The mere fact of school sponsorship does not license thought control in the high school. The young men and women of Hazelwood East expected a civics lesson, but not the one the court teaches them today."

Paul Fleming, Principal of Wilmington High School regrets the ruling.

"When I came here in 1984 the students didn't have a paper. I pushed and pulled for a paper; the paper is one of my proudest accomplishments. I wish this ruling never happened," Fleming said during a telephone interview.

According to Kathleen Bell, co-advisor of the Wildcat, Fleming has never censored the paper.

"We don't have a problem with censorship," Bell said, "at least we haven't yet. If someone wrote an article on a controversial issue we would publish it."

Bell contended that it is impossible and detrimental to try to insulate high school students from the real world. "They're just two steps from becoming adults," she said.

Bell added that she would never permit the paper to publish something that directly insulted a specific staff member or student.

Peter Atlas, co-advisor of the Wildcat called the court decision "unfortunate."

"We are trying to teach them a sense of freedom and here they are taking it away," Atlas said.

The Wildcat staff protested the court ruling, Joe Linehan, co-editor of the paper called the ruling a "travesty of justice."

"The Constitution was never written to exclude children. Kids under 17 constitute a large portion of the population. Kids are people too, let them have the same privileges granted by the Constitution," Linehan said.

At the New England Press Association Convention at the Marriott Hotel in Cambridge last week, David Simonson, National Newspaper Association Vice President, said the latest court decision opens up a partial danger.

Simonson said, "The Supreme Court is a most unpredictable thing, I don't like to see a precedent established."

Frankly speaking

by Kevin John Sowyrda

Barbara and John Cannon have a playful New Year's resolution. It consists of a bouncing boat, a giant whale slide, a bucking bronco, some benches and picnic tables, and a whole lot more. What Barbara and John Cannon are resolved to do is build a giant playground for the kids of Wilmington.

Joined by many other local residents, the Cannons love the community, but see the need for a place where parents can go with their young children and enjoy a nice afternoon in the sun. They put their heads together and formed Wilmington Kids' Place Play Ground Committee. The way Barbara puts it, "It just started out with a bunch of women who felt there wasn't a good playground in town."

So off Barbara trekked to the Arlington Trust last year, and set up a non-profit bank account for the group, which to date has collected some $10,000 toward the costs of a 10,000 square foot playground. This money has come from donations solicited from local businesses.

The game plan for the playground committee is what you might call the Robert Leathers concept. Leathers, a prominent architect who specializes in playground design (as if you thought there was no such specialty), set up a "collaborative" as Barbara explains it, between himself, the parents, and interestingly enough, the kids themselves. This is where the playground proposal gets interesting.

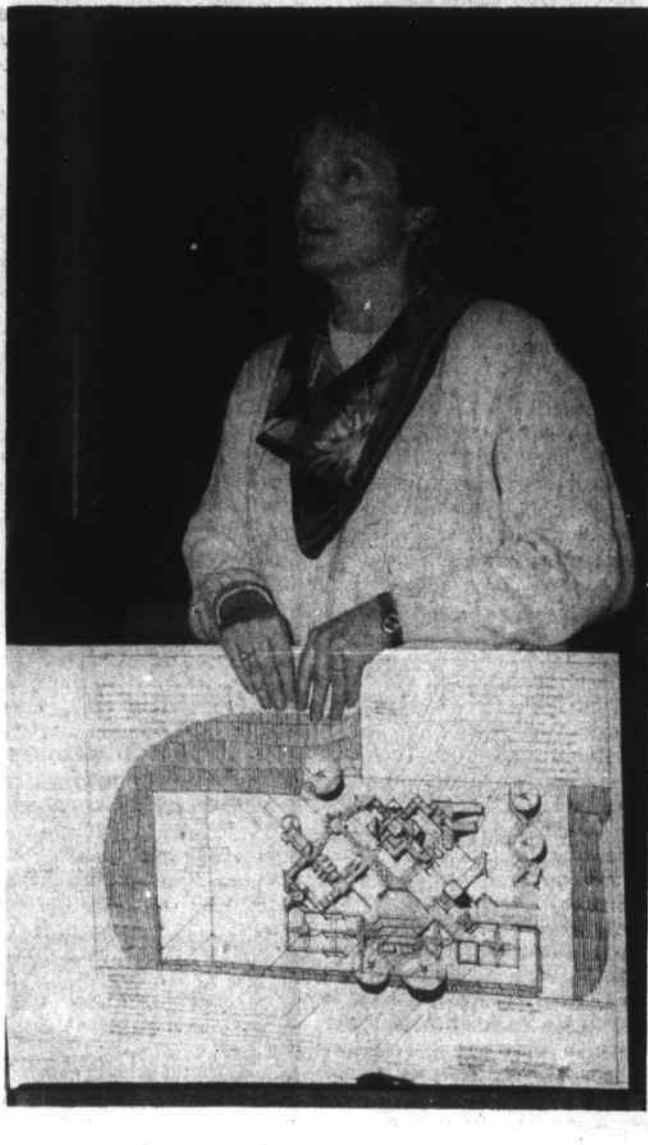

Having become famous through his playful trade, and now a regular guest on none other than Sesame Street, Leathers will design playgrounds only for groups that are willing to construct the facility themselves; grandparents, parents, and kids alike, side by side. That's what makes Barbara and company all the more enthusiastic about their efforts. She says involving the kids is a big inspiration, "Because when you involve kids and make them have to work for it, they have more respect for the project because it will become a part of them, and not just a free gift."

With Leathers on board, the committee began their fun work last September 17 on what Leathers dubbed Design Day. Leathers came to Wilmington and spoke to all grade K-5 students in the public schools. This was probably a sight, indeed. While Barbara Cannon kept careful minutes, Leathers probed the children for their fondest wishes of the 'ideal playground'. It was like a verbal Christmas wish list, with the wishes providing architect Leathers the material he needed for his brainstorming later that night.

Together with the Playground Committee, Leathers worked through the evening on his plans, which when finalized took special care to address the needs of handicapped children. There will also be a giant amphitheater seating 60, which is handicapped accessible.

Set to begin construction on the playground in June, the Cannons' biggest obstacle now is raising an additional $10,000 by March 15. Though a large sum of money, the Wilmington Kids' Playground Committee is optimistic and has a fund raiser planned for February 26, at the Wilmington-Tewksbury Elks.

Barbara makes the perfect leader for her group. Still upbeat with $10,000 to go by March, she's confident the financial goal will be met, "because despite the negative things in towns, this is a positive thing for parents, grandparents, and kids."

Buckley lands post in Burlington

Lillian Buckley, former executive director of the Wilmington Housing Authority, has accepted a position as the full time director of the Burlington Housing Authority.

Buckley was chosen from an initial field of 25 candidates following an interview before the screening committee Monday night.

"I'm very pleased," Buckley told the Town Crier, adding that she is grateful for the experience she gained in Wilmington. In her new job, Buckley will have the assistance of a full time administrative assistant and a part time receptionist.

The Burlington Housing Authority primarily supervises rental units and elderly housing but no scattered site homes, which Buckley views as an advantage. Another is her approximate $25,000 salary. Buckley left her previous position in Wilmington when EOCD refused to increase her salary to cover the extra hours her job demanded at that time.

The January 31, 1963 edition of the Town Crier of Wilmington noted that:

The Mass. State Housing Board set prices for 13 veterans' homes on Wildwood Street. Two bedroom houses would sell for $11,500; three bedrooms dwellings would go for $12,750.

The first woman in the US, if not in the world to skate a mile in less than three minutes, did so last Sunday at Lake Como, St. Paul, Minnesota - Jeanne Ashworth of the Wilmington Skating Club made the mile in 2:53.

Lucci's Supermarket was advertising New York sirloin at 79 cents a pound; undercut roast and lamb legs were selling for 69 cents a pound.

The new home of Munroe Paper in North Wilmington was sold by the Wilmington Development Co. to Munroe for $300,000.

William Harrison of Church Street was appointed to fill the vacancy left on the permanent building committee by the resignation of Vincent McLain.

Temporary Town Manager Harold Melzar, and the finance committee turned thumbs down on several expenditures, among them $7,000 to paint the Herbert C. Barrows Auditorium. Melzar didn't think the auditorium needed painting. He was also against an item to "paint the paint shop," saying with a touch of humor - "why it should cost money to paint the paint shop, I cannot say."

Pictured were girls who recently joined Girl Scout Troop 174 - Susan Westbrook, Tanya Coy, Kathleen Birknell, Lorraine Wilder, Penny Hadfield, Alice Hudson, Donna Griffen and Pam Hadfield.

Elias Country Store offered chickens for 33 cents a pound; leg quarters 39 cents a pound and Mapleleaf sausages, 59 cents a pound.

Earl Adams, formerly of Chestnut Street "now of Woburn," received an award from the Jaycees of Woburn as "Man of the Year."

Theodore Johnson of Woburn Street, was chairman of the Heart Fund Drive in Wilmington. Mrs. Helen Casey of Main Street was Heart Sunday chairman; John Ristuccia of Wilmington Ford was to serve as merchants' chairman. Club and organization chairman was Frank McLean of Salem Street.

Pictured was Lloyd Bender who at 4 p.m., Saturday was the last candidate to enter the race for selectman.

letter to the editor

Dear Larz:

The board of directors of Share-a-Ride has voted to increase its board membership. We are looking for community, business and agency representatives to serve on the Share-a-Ride Board. We are seeking members who are committed to the concept of improving access for mobility limited persons, and who are willing to lend their skills to a growing enterprise.

If you know of persons in your community who might be interested in becoming a board member, please submit their names to me. Share-a-Ride will consider the applicants with a goal of achieving a balance of geographical distribution, technical and managerial skills, interests, and consumer and professional representation.

I would appreciate any assistance which you can provide.

Sincerely,
Elaine Dratch
Executive Director

Dear Larz:

I would like to take this opportunity to express the Board of Selectmen's view regarding the Fourth of July Committee.

The board met with Jack Cushing, Chairman of the Fourth of July Committee to review a letter received from Assistant District Attorney, Michael Fabbri, concerning complaints that were brought against the committee regarding open meeting law violations.

The Board, as a whole, feels that the Fourth of July Committee is doing a tremendous job in creating an opportunity for public entertainment and celebration during the Fourth of July week. The committee deserves a commendation for the effort and time put forth to make sure that the residents of Wilmington have an event that they can be proud of. We feel that the decision of the district attorney's office enhances the credibility of the Fourth of July Committee as the letter recommended that the committee continue complying with the open meeting law, which has been the committee's practice since its inception.

I feel that the true spirit of America is captured every Fourth of July, in part, by the efforts put forth by the Fourth of July Committee. The celebration and the festivities that they create for the town is a truly remarkable event, considering that they receive no public funds and they are putting on this effort as volunteers in service to the community. We as the Board of Selectmen, applaud this spirit and encourage them to continue providing Wilmington with the "Fun on the Fourth" that we have grown to enjoy.

Very truly yours,
Robert J. Cain, chairman
Wilmington Board of Selectmen

Dear Larz:

The Tewksbury Garden Club would like to extend a big thank you to all who made the lighting on the common very successful.

The plaque is underway and should be on display at the Town Hall by the end of February.

We would like to have the shrubs around Town Hall lighted next year. Please keep us in your budget one more year!

Again, thank you.
Tewksbury Garden Club
P.S. Thank you for the news coverage. Without you people our campaign would not have been successful.

Dear Larz:

The Wildcat Girls' Basketball Team would like to publicly thank all the organizations, groups and individuals who have generously supported it in the first endeavor to bring travelling girls basketball back to Wilmington.

We are well on our way to an outstanding first season.

We are looking forward to expanding our membership by having possibly two or three teams thus affording more Wilmington girls the challenge and opportunity of competing as a team member for the Wildcat Girls' Basketball.

Head coach Bob Sellers,
Coach Bob Fasulo

Letters policy

The Town Crier welcomes letters to the editor. In order to be printed, a letter must be signed, with the writer giving his name and address. The name of the writer may be withheld in print but must be submitted to the Town Crier. Letters must not include any false or defamatory statements. While there is no set length restriction, letters should be brief. A limit of 500 words is suggested. Letters are published on a space-available basis.

Two bills will impact education

Press release from
Rep. Jim Miceli

Representative James R. Miceli (D-Wilmington, Tewksbury) has announced the recent enactment of two bills by the Massachusetts State Legislature that will have a far reaching positive effect on the continuing improvement of public education in the Commonwealth.

H-6371, an act enhancing the teaching profession and recognizing educational achievement will create new educational grant programs while expanding the base for others. This legislation raised teachers' salaries to a guaranteed minimum of $20,000 and established three new beneficial programs.

The Carnegie Schools program, established through H-6371, will give parents, teachers and principals unprecedented influence in educational decisions regarding the education of children within their schools.

The legislation also creates a Professional Development School program which will provide training for rookie teachers and continuous professional assistance for veteran teachers. Finally, the bill sponsors a (REACH) program (Recognizing Educational Achievement) which will commend improved student performance through cash rewards in any number of categories established by the State Board of Education.

Representative Miceli announced, "I am proud to have supported this legislation to improve our schools. The public school system(s) serving families of the 20th Middlesex District will benefit from $41,095 in additional funds." The Representative also added, "Besides these programs, next year our schools will be eligible for $50,808 to increase Horace Mann grants to teachers who take on additional responsibilities."

The School Building Assistance Program has been vastly improved through the enactment of H-6402. This legislation includes a retroactive increase in the F188 program which will approximately double the number of new building projects that may be approved with state assistance. In addition, H-6402 expands the percentage within which school districts may be reimbursed for approved projects. The percentage increase in Wilmington will raise the reimbursement rate from 60 to 65 percent and in Tewksbury from 69 to 70 percent.

The passage of these two important bills represents the Legislature's commitment to improving the quality and facilities of public education for the children of the Commonwealth.

Consultant to review town land use in area of common

The Wilmington Permanent Building Committee is reviewing 20 bids from consulting firms for a study of town land use in the area around Wilmington Common.

The committee wants to get a professional view of the town's needs in relation to the land in the area. Among the town-owned land are the common, the high school, the Swain School complex, the library and the old Grange Hall lot.

The study would give the town a long-range plan for the area.

A second study will focus on the fire and police stations.

League looks at moderator's job

This article is the fourth in a series presented by the League of Women Voters of Wilmington in an effort to familiarize the public with the duties and responsibilities of town officials.

The culmination of this effort will be a public "Meet Your Town Officials" reception to be held in the spring. This reception will give citizens the opportunity to discuss issues of interest or concern with town officials in an informal setting.

The Town Moderator is elected at large and serves a three year term of office as established in a 1987 bylaw change. The Moderator serves without pay.

The primary function of the office is to preside at town meetings and to preserve order and decorum. The Moderator also has some appointive powers. He may appoint a temporary Moderator to perform the duties of the office should it become expedient for him to address the meeting or should he be unable to attend.

In addition, the Moderator works in cooperation with the Chairman of the Board of Selectmen and the Chairman of the Finance Committee to appoint members of the Finance Committee and may, at Town Meeting, be given the authority to appoint members of such committees as the Veterans Day and Memorial Day committees.

In the absence of the Moderator, the Town Clerk may call the meeting to order and may preside until a Moderator pro-tempore is elected by the Town Meeting.

The Humble Farmer A proven treatment for SADS

The good news is that the winter blahs are treatable. The bad news is that most of us can't go to Arizona for the treatment.

Seasonal affective disorder syndrome, known in psychiatric circles as SADS, is now officially recognized as a winter ailment in the colder parts of North America.

We've known about it for years. When one of the neighbors would stand in the middle of the road in February and swat at passing cars with a two by four, Gramp Wiley always nodded knowingly and said, "Cabin fever."

But seasonal affective disorder syndrome (SADS) does sound more scientific, which means that my psychologist friend Addler can charge more to treat it.

"How did you hear of SADS?" I asked.

Addler uttered a couple of primal grunts and said, "It was through a government funded program."

"Of course it was. Everything is nowadays. But why couldn't they just call it the good old winter blahs or cabin fever?"

"Why do we call old folks senior citizens?" he cried. "A senior citizen has just as many aches and pains as the old folks used to. But anything that's unpleasant has to change its name every other year. I know - a sheep by any other name will still eat grass. But I suppose SADS sounds more scientific than the old, comfortable terms."

"Makes it easier to get state and federal funding to treat it," I suggested.

My friend played with the propeller on his beanie as he squirmed on his couch.

"Our panel of experts has pretty well delineated the problem," he said, "and now us professionals are being trained to treat SADS."

"I didn't know winter depression got to be a problem until February," I said.

Addler laughed a dull, hollow laugh. "December has the shortest days in the year. Oh, people look all right, but with training you can spot the sick ones. Take energetic, bright-eyed people for example."

"All the ones I know are about to go to Florida," I said.

"Their happy state can drop like the stock market. But a stitch in time can save nine. I like happy people - they're the easiest to treat."

"I suppose you suggest that depressed people go south for the winter."

"Sending them all south is very tempting but, from my standpoint, not good medical practice."

I looked out the window at Addler's Mercedes by his heated pool and said, "Three visits a week with you would do more for the patient."

"Right. I treat SADS like any other psychological disorder. My friend, Dr. Grunback, says there's nothing like good, healthful outdoor exercise like skiing to cure the blues."

I recalled that most of Dr. Grunback's winter practice came from setting broken leg bones, but I said nothing.

"The stock market drop helped SADS come into its own this winter," he continued as he rubbed some tanning lotion on his arms. "Our upcoming winter conferences should expand understanding in the field."

I said, "I'm betting on glands and hormones. Get them under control and you can just about rule the world. Lysistrata did."

"Interesting you should mention glands. My patients with SADS gain weight because these long, dark days make them eat and sleep more. This time of year people are putting on their pajamas when they get up from their evening meal."

"Your business is booming in the winter," I exclaimed. "I suppose you really like this time of year."

The psychologist popped a Tums in his mouth and chewed before he answered, "I'm learning to. Since I've hired a new assistant, the long dark days have become blessings. I'll spend most of this winter at medical conferences in Florida learning how to treat patients with SADS."

Homestead Act protects property of elderly

by Arlene Surprenant

Through an amendment to Chapter 188 of Massachusetts General Laws, the real property of residents 65 years or older and disabled citizens who qualify is now protected from seizure up to the amount of $150,000. The so called Homestead Act was signed into law by Governor Michael Dukakis in July, 1987, three years after representatives like Wilmington's Silver Haired Legislator Bill Strob had first started lobbying efforts.

Strob spoke Tuesday before approximately 20 people at AIM Headquarters to explain the Homestead Act and offer assistance in filing the necessary form for protection under the law.

Strob said the bill applies to older homeowners regardless of marital status, and physically or mentally disabled homeowners who are unable to work as a result of their disability. The main thrust of the bill is to protect residents who are threatened with a lawsuit which could cost them their homes. In all instances, those homes must be considered the owner's principal residence.

In order to have their homes protected, those who qualify should pick up a Declaration of Homestead Protection form, fill it out, have it notarized, and file it with the nearest Registry of Deeds. Since many local stationary stores do not yet have the forms, Wilmington citizens may obtain them from Strob for a 35 cent charge. Wilmington homeowners can file them at the Lowell Registry of Deeds. The price to file is ten dollars.

For further information, interested residents may contact Strob at 657-4115 or Senator Golden at 1-722-1646.

Open house on Tuesday for St. Mary's School

Parents interested in registering children in St. Mary's School (Winchester) for the fall of 1988 are invited and encouraged to attend open house to be held during Catholic Schools Week on Tuesday, February 2, between 9 and 11 a.m. Classroom visitation will take place during this time.

With this year's theme "Share the Spirit," the teachers at St. Mary's

School, under the direction of Cynthia Kavanaugh, acknowledge the wonderful talent present in our Catholic school students and invite them to use that talent to create and appreciate the talent of others. These children are provided with a structure of values that help to inspire achievement and success.

St. Mary's School consists of pre-school to grade eight classes. Applications for any openings will be taken in the school office February 2, 3, and 4 from 8:30 to 11 a.m. for the pre-school (three and one-half year-olds), the pre-kindergarten, and kindergarten programs and for grades one through seven. This year St. Mary's introduces its new pre-school program for three and a half year-olds, Thursday and Friday mornings beginning in the fall. To be eligible for this program, students have to be three years old by April 1, 1988. The pre-kindergarten program will continue to be held on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday mornings. To be eligible to enter pre-kindergarten, students need to be four years old by September 9, 1988. The kindergarten hours will be from 8:15 to noon. To be eligible to enter kindergarten, students need to be five years old by September 1.

Please take the child's immunization records and birth certificate, as well as $75 registration fee which is due at the time of application. This fee is applicable to next year's tuition but is not refundable unless the school is unable to accept your child(ren). Call 729-5515 for more information.

Looking for Success?

So is everybody else. And most of us don't know what it is, let alone where to find it. Maybe that's because we're not looking in the right places. As United Methodists we've discovered that we learn what success really means when we look for it together, with God's help.

Computer students learning to type

It used to be that typing courses were taught only to high school girls in secretarial courses. But the computer has changed all that. Students in elementary schools have been studying typing to enable them to work efficiently with computers. At the Wildwood School, Michael Sellitto, Nicole Turner and Eric Jones share one computer.

Rene Morin, Crystal Chambers and Ryan Hoffman receive some instruction from their classroom teacher, Mrs. Sousa.

While Darren Bishop types, Matt Mutchler and Joanie DeMarco watch.

obituaries

Karen Stake

Mrs. Karen O. Stake (Jensen), a resident of Wilmington, died in Tewksbury January 24, 1988, after a lengthy illness.

Born in Copenhagen, Denmark, 85 years ago, Mrs. Stake lived in Chicago for many years before moving to Wilmington five years ago. She is survived by her husband, Werner G. Stake, a nephew, George Dahl of Wilmington and niece Mary Galli of Stoughton.

Funeral services were held at the Nichols Funeral Home, 187 Middlesex Ave., Wilmington, Wednesday, January 27, with the Rev. Dennis Kohl, pastor of the Faith Lutheran Church of Andover officiating. Burial followed in Wildwood Cemetery, Wilmington.

Memorial donations to the Health Center

Recent donations to the Regional Health Center in Wilmington included one from Cecily D. Spirits in memory of Mitchell Spirits for his February 5 birthday. "I'll always love you and remember you."

Catherine Curran

Catherine T. Curran of 28 Delaney Dr., Tewksbury died suddenly at St. John's Hospital Saturday morning, January 23, 1988. Miss Curran, 81 years of age, was born in East Boston, the daughter of the late John J. and Bridget (Dalton) Curran. She lived in East Boston most of her life prior to moving to Tewksbury 32 years ago where she lived on Brown Street before moving to Delaney Drive six years ago. Miss Curran was a member of the Tewksbury Golden Age Club.

She is survived by her brother, Paul J. Curran of Tewksbury, and several nieces and nephews including Evelyn Haines and Rose McKenna of Tewksbury, Ethel Salvo of Everett and others.

The funeral was held from the W.S. Cavanaugh & Son Funeral Home, Wilmington on Monday followed by a Funeral Mass at St. William's Church. Interment took place in the family lot, Wildwood Cemetery, Wilmington.

Patti-Anne Hazelton-Linton

Patti-Anne Hazelton-Linton, of Port Jervis, New York died at the Dana Farber Cancer Institute, Boston, on Monday, January 25, 1988.

Mrs. Linton, 28 years of age, was born in Fitchburg, the daughter of Patricia (Welling) Hazelton Bishop of Franklin, N.H. and Charles L. Hazelton of Monroe, New York. She was educated and lived in New York the major part of her life.

At the time of her death she served as deputy sheriff in the Orange County Sheriff's Department, Goshen, N.Y.

Mrs. Linton is survived by her husband, Gary D. Linton, her parents, John and Patricia Bishop of Franklin, N.H. and Charles and Carolyn Hazelton of Monroe, N.Y.; her brother, Charles L. Hazelton, III of Bristol, N.H., her sister, Marie Hazelton Rogers of Newburgh, N.Y.; her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Welling of Wilmington and Mrs. Charles Hazelton of Charlestown; also many aunts, uncles and cousins.

The funeral will be held from the W.S. Cavanaugh & Son Funeral Home, 374 Main St., Friday at 11:15 a.m. followed by a Funeral Mass at St. Dorothy's Church, Wilmington at noon, celebrated by the Rev. Rickard J. O'Donovan. Interment will take place in Wildwood Cemetery, Wilmington.

Friends may call at the funeral home Thursday from 2 to 4 and from 7 to 9 p.m.

Honored for helping DARE

Several Wilmington students were honored on Wednesday for helping the DARE drug abuse prevention program. At the North Intermediate, certificates were presented to (front, from left) Jimmy DeMarco, Kristen Lubanski and Gina DeSantis. Jimmy Killilea also received a certificate, but was not present for the photo. On hand to honor the students were Asst. Supt. of Schools Henry Dembowski, Chief of Police Bobby Stewart, Juvenile Officer Bob Spencer, Principal Mary Driscoll and Safety Officer Bob Shelley.

Wilmington school news

DARE

Seven junior high students were recognized by Police Chief Bobby Stewart and Officer Robert Spencer Wednesday for their help with the DARE program.

The students who received special certificates were Jodi Pellegrini, Millie Ann Cavanaugh, and Brian Oxman, all from the West Intermediate School; and Kristen Lubanski, Gina DeSantis, Jimmy DeMarco, and Tom Killilea, all from the North Intermediate.

The students visited local elementary schools the past two weeks to talk to elementary age youngsters who asked questions on what to expect in junior high and how to handle peer pressure and drug and alcohol abuse.

Officer Spencer has been addressing fifth and sixth graders the past year through DARE in an effort to make students aware of problems associated with drug use and to afford them ways to deflect peer pressure to try drugs and alcohol.

Wildwood School

The Aquarium Tidepool Review has been booked by the PAC to visit the school February 2 and 9. Each wing will have a 45 minute assembly, and then each classroom will have 15 minutes to visit with the sea creatures.

The PAC is pleased to announce that the following items were donated to the school as a result of our October fundraiser; one telescope; two 10 piece marker sets; five crayon carousels with crayons; three credit card calculators; three magnetic games and two mini basketballs.

Mr. Smith's fifth grade class is currently engaged in a partnership program with Mrs. Kilfoyle's first grade class. Each student works one-on-one with a partner once a week. During the PAWS reading time, the fifth graders read orally to the first graders. Both students and teachers are thoroughly enjoying this unique experience.

Students from the intermediate levels recently spoke to all fifth graders in connection with the Project D.A.R.E. program. Graduation ceremonies for fifth graders participating in Project D.A.R.E. will be held February 11 from 7 to 8 p.m. The PAC will provide refreshments for the event.

Students of the Month of December enjoyed a ceremony in which they were represented with a certificate and recognized by their teachers and classmates. Congratulations are extended to Kerek Mazza, Craig Irwin (K); Eric Hiltz, John Shirley (1); Chris Kilburn, Matthew Marchesi (2); Katie Peterson, Nancy Sellitto (3); Rene Morin, Dieder Tetrault (4); Eric Frost, Jennifer Hayes (5); Diane LaRocque (phys ed); Billy Lemos (computer) and Cara Cheney (instruments). Cynthia Jones once again prepared the certificates and the PAC provided the refreshments. Thanks go to Peggy Ficociello and Maureen McDonald for their help on refreshments.

The PAC is pleased to announce the dates of upcoming activities: March 7-11, Book Fair; March 31, Roller skating party; April 8, Jeff and Jeff; April 29, Ice cream smorgasbord; June 14, Fifth grade farewell supper.

Volunteers are still needed for preliminary work on the town wide health fair to be held in March. If anyone is interested, please leave your name and phone number in the PAC mailbox.

Note: This is your column. We are happy to print news associated with school PACs, events and activities, students, faculty, etc. Please bring news to the Town Crier office by Mondays or contact Arlene Surprenant at 658-5696.

In Memory of our Dad and Papa Mitch Spirits 1987 - January 25 - 1988

The heart that sees beyond the mist,
beyond the skies of gray,
Knows the sun will shine again
and bring a brighter day,
A day when pain and sorrow
and loneliness and gone,
A day when love, with all its warmth and happiness lives on . . .
The heart that keeps a memory and holds it ever dear,
Looks beyond today
and sees tomorrow shining clear.

Why the planets rotate
A long time ago there was a God named Suca. He was the God of strength. He challenged people from different planets and countries to arm wrestle with him. He won every time and sometimes he broke people's arms when he pinned them. He even beat Lugair, the head God at arm wrestling. He was a great arm wrestler but he bragged about it. Lugair didn't like Suca, so he created a strong person who was made from solid rock. Lugair then told everyone about this creature.

Suca found out about this and he couldn't refuse a challenge so he set out to find the creature. When he found the creature he challenged it to an arm wrestle. Just about everyone in the universe came to watch it. When the match started Suca went ahead but then the creature had a sudden burst of energy and he beat Suca.

Suca had said before the match that if he lost he would have to do anything Lugair wanted him to do. He swore by the River Styx. Lugair needed someone with a great strength to push the planets and even for Suca it took 365 days, sometimes even a day longer. That is why the planets rotate. Every time Suca comes back where he started it is called a year.

Why stars fall
Once, many many years ago, when the Earth was new, and the sky was bare at night except for the moon, a multitude of tiny creatures called Grenads flew onto the Earth. Once having landed, they started to eat everything green in sight.

Soon there was nothing left, and everyone starved. Meanwhile, the Grenads, having nothing left to eat, decided to fly away to look for new places to eat. But the sky gooddess, Leora, decided she would stop them. She used her power to create a supersticky shield around the Earth. When the Grenads hit the shield, they stuck.

Leora decided the grenads should be useful, so at night, she caused them to light up as stars. Once in a while, an exceptionally strong one will wriggle free from the shield, and fall, dying, to Earth. That is why we have shooting stars.

The man selling balloons
(a dictation)
Once upon a time there was a man selling balloons. Some people came to buy them. They loved the balloons because they were beautiful colors. Next to the balloons were nice flowers. People liked to pick them, but there was one sad one. Nobody picked it because it was sad and lonely.

Everybody picked his friends. The balloon man said to the little flower he would dig some flowers so the little flower could have some friends. The flower finally got some friends. Now the flower was happy again.

The balloon man took a balloon and tied it to his stem.

How Leaves became Colored

Once a long time ago Jews had a beautiful bird, which had large colored feathers. Jews loved this bird very much. Hera was so jealous of this bird. One day Hera was jealous of the beauty of this bird, she killed it. Then plucked it. Each feather was planted, and now they are trees, and because this bird was killed in the autumn, the feathers turn to the many colors of leaves we see this time of year.

The dream
Once upon a time there was a man. He lived by the sea. One day the man looked out the window and said, "How I just love to look out and see the sea." And that minute the sea was gone and the man was in a castle. The castle was over two stories high. There were a lot of guards.

There was a king and a queen and a princess. The king asked the man what he was doing in the castle. "I don't know sir," he said. And then there was a flash and a bang, and the man woke up in his bed.

Skiing at King's Ridge
I like to go skiing. It's my favorite winter sport. My father and I go skiing at a place called King's Ridge. It is nice there. If you stay there at lunch time you can have lunch. My favorite spot to go down is the Mad Hatter and the White Rabbit. There is even a school there called Skiwee.

The young beaver
A young beaver lived with her mother and father, but she had one small problem. She could not slap her tail. She did it over and over again, but she could just not slap her tail.

Finally, one day she did it. Her mother and father were very proud of her. She learned that practice makes perfect.

How cats got their names
A long time ago there was a half god named Caton. One day he was experimenting with his chemicals when there was an explosion. He put too much carbon dioxide in and was killed.

At the same time Caton was killed, Suez, the king of all gods was visiting one of the goddesses he loved. Areh, the queen of all gods saw him and turned the goddess into a small orange animal with four feet, a tail, and whiskers.

Afterward, Suez was very angry and didn't attend Caton's funeral. A week later though he came to show respect for Caton. While there he saw the same animal that Areh had changed his love into. So, in honor of Caton he called the animal a cat. That is why cats are called cats.

How water was discovered
Once there was a wandering god named Juniper who stumbled upon an unknown pond. He didn't know what the liquid-like substance was that filled the pond. The liquid substance was so cold that when Juniper touched it, his finger was pinched and got very numb. When Juniper looked at the pond, he could see a face.

Juniper decided to give it a name. He called it Water. Juniper went to the pond the next day, and it was very, very cold. Juniper couldn't believe his eyes when he saw Water. He was frozen. When Juniper hit the Water, he cracked up. When Juniper tried to step on Water, he slipped and fell on his face.

Juniper got off right away. Juniper wondered why Water wouldn't talk. He tried talking to Water but there was no response. When Juniper started to leave, the sun came out and Water started talking in a crackling noise. The sun was beating down really hard now. Before long, Water was back to normal. Juniper understood now why Water was once flowing and then turned frozen.

Girl's Day at Regional Health

Why not take a friend, or maybe a few, to a special "Girls Day" at the Regional Health Center in Wilmington Thursday, February 18 from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Experimenting with makeup, trying new dance steps and going out to lunch are all fun things to do with friends! Friends aren't just for fun, but also people to be serious with too. Someone to learn new things with-- such as to become healthier, feel better and look your best!

After a juice and muffin "Wake-Up" there will be a makeup session. The makeup specialist will discuss the correct procedure for cleansing the face and give advice in choosing the best make-up and colors for each skin type. Everyone will have an opportunity to make-up with advice from the specialist.

Next will be learning about yourselves with several individual and group activities. The health educator will do a special project to develop self-expression and awareness. Lunch with friends will consist of pizza, salad and fruit juice. Dessert will be a yogurt bar with a selection of delicious toppings.

After lunch we will learn that healthy eating does not have to be boring. The health educator will discuss how to prepare healthy snacks as well as which diets are actually dangerous to one's health. Participants will discover how fitness and nutrition fit into lifestyles.

Lastly, a session of aerobic dance (no previous experience is necessary). Just take your gym shorts or wear sweats or sneakers. Be prepared for a fun workout!

Take a stand-up mirror, headband or barrette, tissues and makeup for the makeup session. Sneakers and comfortable clothes will be needed for aerobics, old magazines and scissors will be used for a special project, and most importantly, take a friend!

Pre-registration is required by calling 657-3910, ext. 567. Space is limited. This program is best suited for junior and senior high school age girls.

Mass. Voke administrators to honor Miceli

The Massachusetts Association of Vocational Administrators will honor Rep. James Miceli at a special reception March 10. The reception for the Top Ten Club will honor those legislators who have helped advance the cause of vocational education.

According to Shawsheen Tech Superintendent - Director Charles Lyons, Miceli is being recognized for his support and "persistence" in helping push the Voke Aid Bill through the legislature late last year.

"If Jimmy Miceli wasn't the way Jimmy Miceli was, the bill wouldn't have passed," Lyons said with a smile.

Video students taping materials for school's use

The new video elective at Wilmington High School this year got off to a successful start. Ms. Suzette Hall, one of the high school's photography teachers, set up a video curriculum and bought video equipment with her Horace Mann Grant money.

The group of students taking this elective are Ken McCue, Corey York, Mike Linskey, Mike Sullivan, Dennis Topping and Craig Nelson. After one semester's experience of working with the video equipment these students have become a skilled camera crew.

One of Ms. Hall's main objectives in her video curriculum is to make video available for teachers at Wilmington High School. Several teachers from different departments have taken advantage of this opportunity and have appreciated the benefits of using video as a teaching tool. For example, the video camera crew has taped English and French classes doing skits, a theatre arts class mock press conference and a business class that did a production called 'Office of the 90's.' Teachers have commented that video has helped the students' self evaluations and that the students work harder knowing they will be video taped. The principal at WHS, Mr. Paul Fleming, will also use a video, to be produced by Dennis Topping and Craig Nelson, to enhance a talk he will be giving in March on high school renovations.

Other exciting video projects in the works are animated tapes produced by Mike Linskey and Ken McCue which will be submitted to various video contests. The video crew has also been involved with video letters which is a new form of "pen pal" exchange between public school classes. Two Wilmington High School video letters have been sent to Indiana and a vocational school in Pennsylvania. Ms. Hall is extremely pleased with the way video has been integrated in the school and hopes it will become a course for next year so more students can learn how to use the video equipment.

Markey to discuss financial aid

Congressman Edward J. Markey has invited high school students and their parents to join him for his eighth annual student financial aid workshop Sat., Feb. 6, 1988 at Woburn High School.

Representatives from state and federal financial aid offices, local banks, and area colleges, universities and trade schools will be on hand from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the high school to distribute financial aid applications and admissions information.

Experts on ROTC, the U.S. Service Academies, and other armed forces educational programs also will be present to offer advice and information. All of these representatives will be happy to respond to questions about educational grants, loans and scholarships.

A 20-minute film entitled, "Completing the FAF, How to Fill Out the 1988-89 Financial Aid Form," will be shown every half hour during the workshop. The film was produced by the College Scholarship Service of the College Board and provides valuable information on completing this important form.

Said Markey, "During recent years we have seen college costs soar, imposing the heaviest burden on middle and lower income families. Financial assistance exists, but the search for grants, scholarships and loans has become a more complicated task. For this reason I want to help students and their parents understand what steps should be taken and where families can go for advice and answers to their questions." With financial aid application deadlines fast approaching, it is especially important that students have this information, and they can receive it at the Financial Aid Workshop on Sat., Feb. 6.

Congressman Markey continued, "I strongly urge high school juniors and seniors planning to continue their education, college students interested in pursuing financial aid opportunities, and parents faced with today's staggering college costs to stop by Woburn High School for this year's workshop, if only for a few minutes. My office will be pleased to help you in any way we can."

For information on the Feb. 6 program, or for directions to Woburn High School, please contact Congressman Markey's office at 565-2900.

An October wedding is planned.

Rep. Miceli supports bill for the homeless

Representative James R. Miceli (D-Tewksbury - Wilmington) was recently praised by the Massachusetts Coalition for the Homeless for his support of the General Relief Living Arrangement Bill. The bill was signed into law January 4, 1988.

Prior to the passage of this bill, general relief recipients were penalized by having their benefits cut if they shared living expenses with another person. Under the new bill, general relief recipients, who receive $287.80 a month and a $40 rent supplement, may share living expenses with another person without losing any other benefits.

Charlene Gilbert, legislative coordinator for the Massachusetts Coalition for the Homeless, stated that the passage of the bill will "significantly reduce the risk and contribute to the prevention" of homelessness to over 3,000 general relief recipients.

The general relief program is a state funded program for individuals who are not eligible for Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC), Social Security or other benefits.

INGROWN NAILS WHAT CAN BE DONE?

Ingrown toenails are one of the most common complaints that cause people to seek the attention of a Foot Specialist - Podiatrist. This disorder is usually caused by an inherited abnormal curvature along the side on the toenail, a thickening caused by damage of the nail or fungal infection of the nail.

Correction is usually aimed at removal of the ingrown portion of nail, elimination of an infection that may be present and destruction of the root which causes the ingrown or thickened nail.

These procedures are done under local anesthesia on an out-patient basis in either the office or hospital.

Tewksbury school news

Preparing for next year at TJHS

Another school year approaches the halfway mark. It seems that each year moves faster and faster. It also appears that as each year begins, we are already preparing for the next school year. That's the way it is right now at Tewksbury Junior High School.

At the present time, eighth grade students are making a judgement as to which type of career goal they wish to choose. Some have signed up and received help in completing Shawsheen Technical High School applications for next year. These students have been assisted by counselors from Shawsheen Tech in getting enough information about the various shop programs to make an intelligent decision on what they would like to learn in the next four years. Grades and recommendations from teachers at the eighth grade level count heavily toward acceptance and admission to that regional/vocational school. Regular school attendance is a must.

Soon, Mr. DeGregorio will be also presenting information relative to the many varied and excellent course offerings at Tewksbury Memorial High School. Then students, with parental assistance, will be making difficult choices based upon their past accomplishments and the readiness for these new ninth grade challenges.

At 13 or 14 years of age, it is difficult to make these drastic choices and decisions but academic and vocational preparation today so demand. Students need all the help they can get from parents, teachers and counselors in laying this foundation.

If parents of eighth grade students have questions related to vocational or academic choices, they are invited to contact Ms. Hair, eighth grade counselor at Tewksbury Junior High School. Please obtain all the information you can right now in making an informed decision with your child about this future.

The deadline for submittal of applications for acceptance to Shawsheen Tech is February 1, 1988. There will be an open house at Shawsheen Tech Sunday, Feb. 7 from 1 to 4 p.m. so that parents and eighth grade students may visit that facility.

In conjunction with Shawsheen Tech, several members of the mentorship (gifted and talented program) classes at the junior high school were invited and chose to participate in Project Space. Beginning in February, these students will explore high technology fields of chemistry laboratory and electronics laboratory in a state of the art, interactive environment. Students will attend sessions one afternoon per week and one optional Saturday morning per month at the Shawsheen Lab facilities.

Please use these opportunities well. Call the guidance office at Tewksbury Junior High School, 851-3411, for more information or questions related to ninth grade programs for next year.

North Street social studies program

Social studies adoption

The Tewksbury school system has adopted the Silver Burdett Social Studies series which is being utilized in grades K through six.

A study committee which consisted of administrators and teachers (who represented the elementary and junior high school) reviewed several publishers prior to recommending the Silver Burdett Series entitled, "The World and Its People." Its philosophy reflects the belief that children need to know, to appreciate, and to do, offering balanced presentation of content and skills.

The method of organizing content is an expanding or widening horizons approach. The program begins with a study of self and family and expands to a study of neighborhood, community, state, region, nation, and world. There is development of concepts in all disciplines at each level.

The skills development of "The World and Its People" is multidisciplinary. There is attention to skills typically associated with social studies (reading maps, graphs, etc.) as well as to those from other areas not directly associated with social studies such as reading and language arts. Attention is also given to development of citizenship skills, life skills, and thinking skills.

Our North Street students have used the concepts within the texts and applied them to practical activities that they could identify with, some examples are:

1. Field trips to historical locations.
2. Construction of miniature communities.
3. Application of map skills.
4. Role play activities (of other cultures).
5. Celebrating historical anniversaries.
6. Use of our library as a resource center.
7. Sharing of classroom experiences that relate to larger social issues.

Our new social studies texts are helping our past come alive once again for our students and staff.

Heath Brook video works

Keeping up with the trend of the times the Heath Brook School ably produced four video cassettes under the direction of Donna Tyrrell, drama consultant for grades K through six.

A wonderful exciting time was had by all the students who participated.

They wrote the scripts, became characters in their plays and were taped by the television crew of Donald Stewart.

Fourth grade performers were from Mrs. Kalarites's class who produced "Four Fabulous Fables." Mrs. Nasatek's class who produced "Christmas in Other Lands" and Mr. Barry's class who produced "The Constitutional Convention of 1787."

"What - No Christmas" was produced by Mrs. Fiske's third grade class.

AIM coming events for February

The Tuesday group which meets each week at AIM Headquarters has planned a full schedule of events for the month of February. All handicapped residents and their friends are cordially invited to join in the fun each Tuesday from 10:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.

On February 2 at 11:30 a.m., there will be a lively panel discussion on "The Challenges of the Handicapped and the Non-Handicapped and the Inter-relationship Between the Two." Serving as panelists will be Gail Lubanski, Lillian Brown, Dick Duggan, and Larry Curtis.

John Brown will act as moderator. A question and answer period will follow. Anyone who wishes to attend should take a bag lunch. Coffee and dessert will be provided.

Open house during vocational ed. week

"Vocational Education--the Competitive Edge" is the Massachusetts theme for National Vocational Education Week, February 7-14.

Shawsheen Valley Tech, 100 Cook St., Billerica will show how that competitive edge can be acquired at an innovative open house for eighth graders and their parents Sunday, February 7 from 1 to 4 p.m.

Students will have the opportunity to experience what a metal fabricator really does or try their hand at carpentry, for example, during three in-shop hands-on exploratory sessions. Those attending will perform soil and water analysis in the chemical laboratory, learn hair setting and facials in cosmetology and do

On February 9 a Valentine party will be held. Everyone who attends will share in a pot luck lunch which will be provided by the Tuesday "regulars."

On February 16, at 11:30 a.m. Helen Durkee is slated to speak on the importance of good nutrition for good health. Those staying the full time should take a bag lunch.

AIM will have a table set up at the Heart Fair at Wilmington High school on March 17 and 18 from 3 to 7 p.m. Literature will be explaining the activities of the Wilmington Committee for Citizens with Disabilities Inc. (WCCD) and the purpose of that organization.

AIM is an off-shoot of WCCD. Those interested are urged to take time out to stop by and browse around.

computer diagnostic testing in automotive.

Electronics explorers will build a computerized circuit counter; graphics students will print stationery; and those trying out carpentry will frame a shed. All 21 vocational programs will offer shop experiences typical of the regular high school course.

A fourth exploratory, offered to all attendees, will include presentations on academic programs, guidance and sports activities.

Eighth graders and their parents can enjoy a light lunch, and gather handouts about Shawsheen's diverse offerings that include programs for both work and college bound students.

Practical first aid course at Health Center

A standard Multimedia First Aid course for American Red Cross certification will be held at the Regional Health Center in Wilmington on Thursdays, February 4, 11 and 18 from 7 to 9:30 p.m., taught by a certified health educator.

This is a practical course for parents, teachers and those who may need these skills for on-the-job emergencies. Each participant is taught how to care for a victim until trained medical personnel are available.

The course blends theory with actual practice, workbook exercises and film presentations for treating victims of: burns, eye injuries, infections, animal bites, poisoning, shock, stroke, heart attack and wounds. Participants will practice chokesaving, rescue breathing, splinting, bandaging and emergency rescue and transfer.

The course includes workbook and materials.

Pre-registration is mandatory by calling 657-3910, extension 567.

Adult technician training at Tech

Adults interested in upgrading their skills in digital or analog electronics may sign up for Phase II of a four-part troubleshooting (service technician) training program offered at Shawsheen Tech, 100 Cook St., Billerica.

Offered free to persons who are unemployed, and for a nominal fee to employed individuals who are seeking to upgrade their skills or train for a new career, this unique program offers classes held from 4 to 8:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

The program is one of three made possible by a competitive, statewide matching grant for $50,000 recently awarded to Shawsheen Tech by the Bay State Skills Corporation. Support is being provided by Alpha Industries, Altron Inc., Dynamic Research Corp. and Lasertron. The local firms are offering financial help, training assistance, and/or interviews to students who complete the programs.

To register, or for more information, call John F. McDermott, assistant superintendent for community services at Shawsheen, 667-2111, ext. 103.

Public speaking course at RHCW

When asked what their number one fear is, most Americans replied with the answer speaking in front of a group.

Not only business professionals, but club members and others active in their communities, often dread speaking publicly.

To help area residents overcome their fears or sharpen their public speaking skills, the Regional Health Center in Wilmington will sponsor an "Effective Public Speaking" course Tuesdays, February 16, 23, March 1, 8, and 15 from 7 to 9:30 p.m.

Included in the course will be presentation outlining, tips for content, nonverbal communication (body language), handling questions, timing, using graphic elements, overcoming verbal crutches (um, okay, etc.), reasoning and articulation.

Participants will have the opportunity to practice speaking each week.

To pre-register, call the Community Health Education Department at 657-3910, ext. 567. Program is limited to 15 participants. Handouts will be included.

MCC registration at first

Continue your education at Middlesex Community College Division of Continuing Education/Community Services this spring.

For the convenience of area residents, students may register for spring semester classes on the day that classes begin at the Bedford, North, Lowell or Burlington Campus or at any of the extension centers during the week of February 1.

Registration will take place from 6 to 7:30 p.m. for evening classes and from 8:30 to 9:30 a.m. for morning classes. As some courses do reach maximum enrollment prior to the beginning of the semester, call 275-8910, ext. 254 to see that space is still available.

More than 600 credit and non-credit courses, workshops and seminars will be offered by the Division of Continuing Education/Community Services this spring.

In addition, students may register in person on weekdays from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the North Campus, Building 5, Springs Road, Bedford.

Phone registrations may be made with a MasterCard or Visa by calling 275-8910, ext. 254 and asking for the registration operator.

Cookie sale in progress

Girl Scouts will be accepting orders for Girl Scout cookies until Sunday, Feb. 7, 8 p.m.

There are seven varieties to select from including the new Echo cookie. It is a chocolate sandwich cookie with a vanilla cream center. Other varieties include thin mints, chocolate chunks, do-si-dos, tagalongs, samoas, and trefoils.

If a Girl Scout doesn't visit your home or office, please contact Donna Cornelli at 772-2240.

Spar and Spindle Girl Scout Council serves close to 10,000 girls and is a United Way Agency.

Democrats to hold caucus Feb. 27

CLAIMING LOSSES.

QUESTION:

If I have a major loss from a severe windstorm, flood, or fire, could I claim losses for valuables as well as damage to the house?

ANSWER:

It depends on the kind of policy you have. It helps to have proof of ownership, especially for valuables such as silver, jewelry, and family heirlooms. The best way to protect them is to make an inventory. Make a listing of your valuables, room by room. Photographs also help. Take pictures of the valuables in each room. If you need proof of value for costly items, have them appraised. This will be especially helpful for items that increase in value over the years, such as antiques and artwork.

When the Wilmington Redevelopment Authority went before the board of selectmen on Monday night, the toughest part of the presentation was hanging the maps on the wall. The job really called for professional wallpaper hangers, but none were present. So WRA Chairman Jay Donovan, Bruce Campbell and Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski and others wrestled with the large sheets of paper.

Wilmington police news

A couple of weeks ago a young lady appeared at the Wilmington Police station to use the tonic machine. She forgot to take her wallet with her when she left. There is money in the wallet.

If she can provide identification her money to the deputy chief he would be happy to return it to her.

Wilmington police made 19 arrests in the period of January 19 to 26.

Officer Steven LaRivee arrested John M. Silveria, 18, of Roosevelt Road, Wilmington on January 19. He was charged with operating after suspension of his driver's license.

Officers David McCue and Bob Vassallo arrested Michael Eastman of Bruce Street, Tewksbury, after having stopped a truck to check a license plate. He was charged with operating after his license had expired.

At 12:20 a.m. on January 20 officers Richter and Axelrod arrested Earle W. Lavacchia of Peach Orchard Road, Burlington, after a computer check revealed a state police warrant for him for speeding. He was bailed to appear in Framingham.

A Tewksbury man was arrested by Richter and Axelrod at 6 a.m. the same day. Paul M. Roy, 71 Pike St., was charged with possession of a class D substance believed to be marijuana.

At 7 a.m. Officer Tom Miller arrested Paul D. Hill, 24, of 967 Main St., Tewksbury on a Wilmington default warrant. He was taken directly to court.

At 9 a.m. the same day Officer Jim Peterson arrested Sean P. Putney, 22, of Bay Street, Lowell. Putney was charged with operating after the suspension of his license, and on the basis of an outstanding warrant issued by the state police, Foxboro. He was taken directly to Woburn Court.

After a joint investigation Wednesday evening by Inspector Michael McKenna and Arson Inspector Jack Burke of the fire department of a fire at the Wilmington Hyundai garage, on January 17 a local young man was arrested. Christopher Francis, 18, of Carter Lane was charged with arson, and was bailed to appear in Woburn Court.

Officer Paul Jepson arrested a Haverhill man Thursday afternoon, after stopping him on Route 62, near Route 93. Julio C. Cruz, of 14 Hillside Street, Haverhill was charged with operating after the suspension of his driver's license.

Officer Paul Chalifour arrested Kenneth Bickford, of 77 Burnier St., Lowell early Friday morning after a computer check revealed a warrant issued by the state police in Newbury. He was bailed to appear in Salem District Court.

Friday evening officer Steve Mauriello arrested Steven Peterson of Cook Street, Billerica on the basis of a default warrant from the Billerica police.

He made a second arrest the same evening when he arrested Ernest Rogers of 71 Pinehill Rd., Nashua. Rogers was charged with operating after the suspension of his license, and was arrested on a default warrant.

Officers White and Axelrod arrested Michael Whitehead of West Emerson Street, Melrose Saturday at 12:20 a.m. on a charge of operating while under the influence. He was bailed for a Monday court appearance.

Officer Steven Stokes arrested Ricki Casady, 30, of 616 Woburn St., Wilmington on Wildwood Street. Cassady was charged with speeding and operating after the suspension of his license.

Officers Jepson and Hubby arrested Stanley Kanakaris Jr. of Tewksbury Saturday night. He was charged with operating after the suspension of his license.

Steven Kirkpatrick, 153 Alewife Parkway, Somerville, was arrested Saturday night by officers Shepard and Jepson. He was held for the weekend on the basis of a default warrant, issued by a six man jury court in Lowell. He was originally arrested last year for a break-in of a home on West Steet in Wilmington.

Monday morning Officer Jim White arrested Charles A. Quinton, 25, of 18 Pines Rd., Billerica and charged him with operating after the suspension of his license.

A 3 a.m. Monday a motor vehicle stop and arrest by officers Miller and Shepherd, for operating after suspension of his license led to further charges against an Andover woman. Lori Cash, 20 of 286 Shawshen St., Andover was additionally charged with possession of several controlled substances, one of which was believed to be crack, a derivative of cocaine, and heroin and cocaine. She was held in jail and taken directly to court Monday morning.

Also found in her possession was a 38 caliber revolver, for which she was properly licensed. However, Wilmington officials will be contacting the Norwood police concerning a revocation of her license to carry a revolver.

There were 20 accidents in Wilmington during the period of January 19-January 26 and 35 alarms. Arrests numbered 19 and there were two cases of assault and battery which are under investigation. There was one report of break and entry, and three of domestic problems.

There were four disturbances, two fires, two reports of larceny, two cases of medical assistance and three of protective custody. One motor vehicle was stolen and one recovered. There was one traffic complaint and 10 reports of vandalism. There were 5 suspicious activities and two threats investigated and one restraining order issued.

town, cost "several million dollars" less than their own design, and project good traffic service levels through the year 2010.

It was pointed out that the third option would force some businesses to "reorient the operation of their buildings" to accommodate new street patterns. Those impacted, to varying degrees, would be businesses southwest of Main Street like Wilmington Grain, Sweetheart, and Wilmington Veterinary Clinic. But most homeowners and businessmen in the room felt like Fran Mauriello, of Diamond Crystal Salt, that the plan has "good potential."

"It's the best looking one I've seen," said Church Street resident Charles Gilbert.

WRA Chairman Jay Donovan said he felt more comfortable about the alternative because it addresses some concerns raised by residents. He said his board would not make any decision on the three plans until members meet with those potentially affected next month and all interested citizens have a chance to be heard. Donovan stressed that "all we're doing is listening."

To learn more about the new plans, residents can contact Executive Director Michael Matt at the WRA office at 657-5649.

Wilmington senior topics

Great response

Thanks to the seniors who volunteered to serve on the Minuteman Homecare Board of Directors as directors and alternates. We were very happy with the response to our request in the senior citizen column in this paper.

Dr. Leavitt, Feb. 5

We regret that Dr. Leavitt was not able to be at the Center last Friday. His services were needed at the hospital. The doctor has rescheduled his day at the Center to Friday, Feb. 5 beginning at 9 a.m.

COA meets February 1

The February meeting of the Council on Aging will be held in the function room Monday, Feb. 1. A report will be given by the budget committee on the review of our senior budget for fiscal year 88-89, with the town manager.

Other pertinent senior business will also be discussed at the meeting. After the business portion of the meeting is over we will have two guest speakers. Silver Haired Legislator Bill Stroh will speak to the seniors on the Homestead Act forms we have at the center. He will be able to answer any questions you may have as to filing the forms.

A representative of the Home Health Service of Lowell will also be our guest. She will inform us on how and where we can get home health services and how much the services will cost.

These two subjects are very important to senior citizens. It would be wise to have knowledge on protecting our home and our health. Try to make the meeting, it will begin at 1:30 p.m.

Arts and crafts

Mae Cannizaro, one of our arts and crafts fair volunteers will be holding a meeting on the fall fair in the craft room Tuesday, Feb. 2 at 10 a.m. The purpose of the meeting is to formulate plans for the fair. Those who wish to help with the event are urged to be at the Center Tuesday morning.

Every senior present will select how they will contribute in making the fair a success. Some seniors have already signed they will be at the Center, but it will take many hands to make a job as enormous as the fair work for the benefit of all seniors.

Activity programs

All of the activity programs are very well attended: the therapeutic exercise sessions have a good number Mondays and Wednesdays from 10 to 11 a.m.; Tuesday mornings many are busy in the ceramic room from 9:30 to 12:30 p.m. Thursday afternoons the function room is beginning to fill up as the dancers take to the floor. The same on Friday as the bingo players fill the function room. The only program we cannot seem to find an instructor to replace our last one is the arts and crafts. We have a number of seniors interested in many crafts available but we need an instructor. If you can help us, will you call the Center?

Social February 23

The Council on Aging therapeutic social for February will be held Wednesday, Feb. 23. It will be a bus trip to Portsmouth, N.H. with luncheon at Yoken's Restaurant. Time will be allowed for shopping in the gift shop after lunch. The buses will leave the center at 10:45 a.m. and return around 3:30. The

Gillis back in race

by Arlene Surprenant

Dan Gillis has re-entered the race for Wilmington Housing Authority. In last week's Town Crier, Gillis announced he was stepping down to let others take over the struggle to provide affordable housing in Wilmington.

At the urging of friends who saw last week's article, Gillis decided to pull papers and seek another term on the board. He said a top priority is assuring that a duplex project he supports becomes a reality.

"I'm going to stay in here and finish this fight," Gillis said Sunday. He will face opposition from Lester Chisholm and Judy Halley, should they decide to stay in the race. They both pulled papers for Gillis' five year seat.

Other residents who are circulating nomination papers for various seats are Kevin Sowyrda for Shawshen Tech School Committee; Robert Cain for Wilmington Board of Selectmen; and Shirley Callan, Andrea Paglia, and Suzi Cushing for the Wilmington School Committee.

All nomination papers for the April 16 town election must be returned to the Town Clerk by the March 3rd deadline.

• Budget

Stapczynski expects will increase by approximately $300,000. This, he felt, was a conservative estimate. He cautioned, however, that state aid monies could be expected to tighten up in the near future.

In reviewing the tax levy, Stapczynski said the 1989 tax levy limit for Wilmington is estimated to be $19,447,366. Based on the tax levy, the unclassified tax rate is estimated to be $15.54.

Stapczynski explained the Board of Assessors is now in the process of conducting the town's triennial update of real estate values. The new real estate values will be reflected in the FY'89 rate, he said.

Because the tax levy is affected by new growth, the town manager said a general slowdown in commercial, industrial, and personal property growth in 1987 bears watching in the year ahead. Stapczynski added he was "most concerned" about any downward trend in this area, though Selectman Jim Stewart said some residents might be more comfortable with a slowdown in industrial growth.

The proposed budget will be reviewed by the Wilmington Finance Committee in preparation for the April 23 annual town meeting.

luncheon will be served at noon.

Signing up will begin at 9 a.m. Wednesday, Jan. 27. A $3 non-refundable deposit will be requested on sign up to help defray the cost of the social. At that time you will also tell us your choice of the meal which will be either scrod, chicken or fried shrimp. We would also like to know if you will be driving your own car or driving with someone else. If you are handicapped and will be boarding the bus set for the handicapped, we would also like to be informed.

Stereo
We have been offered a mahogany stereo console standing three feet high by five feet long. We have two stereos at the Center. If any senior would like it, I have been told by the owner it is in very good condition - call 657-4082. She told me it will be delivered to you.

Even before the storm arrives, the Tewksbury DPW crew is gearing up to handle another --

It can be peaceful while the snow is falling, but not for everybody. Streets need to be cleared, but who are the guys who drive the plows?

Tewksbury's DPW crew, like hundreds of similar groups around the country, will tackle a snowstorm with an almost military precision.

Monday, 2:43 p.m. -- Rain has been falling for a few hours when the phone rings in the DPW's radio dispatch office. At the other end is a dispatcher from Bedford-based Weather Services Corp., with an updated forecast.

"Stand by to copy," says the voice on the phone, and a list of numbers is read off. "One, six, 13, 14, 17, 24, 31, 42..."

The numbers are checked off on the company's "Snow/Ice Storm Warning" form in the DPW office. The numbers mean (1) Snow, (6) snow and rain mixed, (13) over 34°F, (14) becoming, (17) 30°F through 34°F, (24) three to six inches accumulation, (31) Monday, (42) four to six, (52) p.m., and so forth. Wind, snow accumulation, storm duration and temperatures expected are given with a crisp military cadence.

5:57 p.m. -- The rain turns into fat snowflakes, which soon carpet the ground. The streets stay clear, however, since the pavement is still warm enough to melt the snow. But the preparations begin...

6:48 p.m. -- DPW Foreman John Kane arrives at the dispatch office and slams his card through the time clock located there. For Kane, also known as Car 2 on the road, it will be a long, long night.

7:05 p.m. -- Kane starts calling up the private plow operators, who are contracted with the town to clear Tewksbury streets. Walter Haley starts calling on the other line. Some 35 trucks will join in the scattered convey of plows, along with the six functioning sanders owned by the town. One town truck is down with clutch problems, and its absence will make everyone else's work that much harder.

7:10 p.m. -- Town trucks head out to begin sanding the streets. In the course of a normal storm, Kane said, some 70 tons of salt will be spread, along with from 350 to 400 tons of sand-salt mix. In all, some 270 miles of town streets need to be scraped clear.

Before the storm gets too heavy, Kane notes, a layer of straight salt will be sprinkled. The first snow will turn the salt into brine, which will keep the macadam clear of ice and make plowing easier.

8:05 p.m. -- The first private contractor arrives to punch in his time-card and start work. Each contractor responded to an advertisement for plow operators, which ran in area newspapers in autumn, and each was later given a license to work for the town.

The contractors bring more than just plow-equipped pick-up trucks, however, and heavier equipment is rented for a higher rate. Pick-ups are used at $28 an hour, six-wheel trucks get $35 an hour, and the big 10-wheelers get even more.

After the time clock is punched, each contractor is given a map of part of the town, and is told which route to cover. Some of the private plowers have been working for the town for years, often on the same route.

The town is broken up into 16 separate routes, all of them based upon a central "main" street.

Whipple Road, Andover Street, Livingston Street, and others -- each will be cleared first, to gain access to the smaller side streets.

Route #3, for instance, follows North Street from town center to Route 133. Once North Street has been cleared, which may take four passes or more, the plows then start to "scrape" the side streets. The first pass will scrape a path for any emergency vehicles that may be called, and a plow will return later to widen the path and finish the job. First things first.

The 16 routes are also divided into five districts, with a separate "spotter" in each district. Driving a town pick-up, the spotter's job is to insure that the work is being done on time and properly.

10:11 p.m. -- Town sander #51 radios in with electrical problems.

A few thousand kids will groan at the news that Tewksbury schools will open as usual.

The tail lights aren't working right, according to driver Brian Gath, and a snowplow that can't be seen is a hazard to everyone on the road. The truck is called back to the DPW garage on Whipple Road, where Roy "Call me Mr. Goodwrench" Hudson breaks out the tools and starts work on the vehicle. The work is soon finished and #51 is back in service.

At the same time, Truck #57 pulls in for a fresh load of sand-salt mix. Driver Kevin Conlon (no relation to this author) radios in to have a front-end loader ready to fill him up. Backing up his truck to the mountain of mix behind the DPW garage, Conlon waits patiently as the filling is done. A honk from the loader tells him that the job is finished. Conlon kicks the truck into gear and pulls away to continue sanding along his route.

11:19 p.m. -- Foreman Kane in "Car 2" leaves the DPW quarters to inspect the work of the evening. The first street he visits is Catamount Road, off North Street, which has the steepest grade in town. If Catamount is passable, then most of the other town roads will be able to handle traffic soon. Birches are bent to within inches of the road, but Catamount is clear.

The actual plows, Kane points out, usually won't last the whole season. At the bottom edge of the snowplow is the "cutting edge," an inch-thick piece of steel held in place by a dozen finger-thick bolts. The cutting edge becomes too hot to touch after a night of plowing, he says, and the bottom of the blade will be knife-sharp from being honed against the pavement. Three or four storms is the normal life of a cutting edge, he says.

11:35 p.m. -- The wet snow turns back into rain, which may or may not be good news. If the rain holds, the streets will clear themselves. But if the temperature drops, the rain could turn the streets into rivers of frozen slush, which will still need scraping.

Kane spots a van parked by the road, with a broad "U" shaped snowbank plowed around it.

scraped, sooner or later, but somebody's street is naturally going to be the last one plowed.

Pulling onto Livingston Street a few minutes later, the foreman again reaches for the radio, but this time he doesn't change his mind. The stretch of Livingston Street between Chandler and Pinnacle has been missed, and Livingston is one of the "main" roads. The problem is corrected within minutes.

12:55 a.m. -- Truck #51 calls in again, this time asking someone to bring jumper cables to "DM," or the Donut Maker shop on Main Street. A ride by the all-night donut shop reveals some 12 plow trucks parked in the lot, but not all are in the service of the town.

"There must be some 200 or 300 plows in the town," Kane says, but only about 35 work for the DPW during snow emergencies. The rest are private citizens stopping into the donut shop before beginning their own unique plowing schedule. Still, the hot coffee hits the spot, and the town's plowing contractors are soon back on the streets. Foreman Kane heads back to the DPW building with coffee and donuts.

3:11 a.m. -- The temperature drops, turning the remaining snow into heavy freezing slush. That means the wet snow won't be melting anytime soon. The work continues.

5:20 a.m. -- Tewksbury School Superintendent John Wynn calls to ask how the streets look, whether the roads have been sanded, and if the school parking lots are done. Wynn says he stayed up late to watch the previous night's weather forecasts on TV, and for a while thought of ordering a town-wide school closure that night, but instead waited until morning to make his decision. Kane says he'll call back once the status of the school parking lots can be checked. Radio calls are made to the spotters.

5:25 a.m. -- Kane calls Wynn to say that all of the school lots are done except for the Dewing school on Andover Street, which will be scraped shortly. Wynn decides to open the schools 90 minutes late, thanks Kane, then starts calling local radio stations to spread the word.

Wynn says his decisions are based on the road conditions, since many of his teachers commute from the surrounding area, and says he calls other school superintendents to ask how they're dealing with the storm. "You try to think of everything,"

Wynn says, "but in the final analysis it's the parents who decide whether or not to send their child into school."

Parents and children across town are now tuning in WCAP-AM in Lowell to listen for the Tewksbury school reports. A few thousand kids will groan at the news that Tewksbury schools will open as usual. Oh, well ... maybe the next storm will be bigger ...

6:35 a.m. -- The first of the private contractors start filtering back to the DPW building to check out. Most of the streets are now done, but the phone is beginning to ring with complaints. Some roads were given a single, initial scrape, to open a path, but a partially clear road can sometimes be mistaken for a finished one by the plow drivers. Complaints are relayed by radio to the town plows and sand trucks still on the road, and the gripes become fewer as the morning wears on.

7:02 a.m. -- The temperature rises above the freezing mark, which would be good news except for the weather report on the radio. The mercury is expected to drop sharply by nightfall, which will leave icy patches on roads all over town. The sanders will be busy for days to come checking the ice.

10:35 a.m. -- Kane is still on the job, though most of the contractors are now at home or working at their daytime jobs.

But Frank Giannetti and Connie Barry are busily plowing the parking lots of the Livingston Street recreation complex, one of the final touches in clearing away the storm's leavings.

"Driving a plow is crazy but it's fun," Giannetti jokes, "except for the mad hours that we work."

3:15 p.m. -- A bone-weary DPW foreman named John Kane finally punches out, after some 19 hours on the job. But the streets have been scraped and sanded, and that's what really matters.

There's still a lot of winter left, though, so the job will never end until the calendar reads "May."

So, if the skies again turn to slate and snow begins to sift from above, the vigilant crew at Tewksbury DPW stands ready fire up the trucks, load up the sand and salt, and head out onto the roads to go and scrape the roads clean again.

Status check

DPW Foreman John Kane checks the status board to see which plow crews are in which parts of town. The Tewksbury streets are divided into 16 plowing routes, with up to four trucks on a single route.

Still falling

Dick Westaway in truck 52 makes his fifth and final pass to "scrape" River Road clean during Monday's snowstorm. The spots on the photo are falling snowflakes, as they were caught by the glare of the camera's strobe.

Marzilli promoted at First Bank

Richard Marzilli has been promoted to assistant vice president for First Bank. He is the manager of the bank's Tewksbury office.

Marzilli started with First Bank in 1980. He assumed the position as manager in 1985.

He is a graduate of Stonehill College with a bachelor of arts degree in mathematics. He is also a member of the Rotary Club of Tewksbury and the Sons of Italy.

He and his wife, Lee, have three children, Richard, Jr., Alan and Lora.

Three firms negotiate for Wilmington Tech space

Laboratory Technologies, Corporation, Home Intensive Care, Inc., and T.T.I., Inc. have leased a total of 18,000 square feet at 100 and 400 Research Drive in Wilmington Technology Park, Wilmington. Meredith & Grew, Incorporated, the Boston based full service real estate company, negotiated the three transactions.

With the occupancy of Home Intensive Care and T.T.I. at 100 Research Drive, the 109,000 square foot single story building is now 86 percent leased. Laboratory Technologies joins tenant United Shoe Machinery Corporation at 400 Research Drive.

"We were with the Tambone Corporation (developer) in our previous facility in Woburn, and found them to be very thorough," said Philip J. Mazzola, general manager of T.T.I. "They found the perfect new location for us here in Wilmington."

Wilmington Technology Park, located on Ballardvale Street, will consist of six one and two-story buildings totaling 735,000 square feet on an 85-acre site. The Park is bordered by the Wilmington town forest to the north.

"We are pleased to have the diversity of tenants now present at Wilmington Technology Park," said John W. Filbin, executive vice president, property management/leasing of the Tambone Corporation. "This demonstrates the broad appeal of the Park."

The Tambone Corporation is a developer of office, R&D, and industrial real estate with projects in Massachusetts and Florida. Founded in 1947, the firm's in-house capabilities include development, financing, design, construction, leasing and property management.

Meredith & Grew Senior Vice President David L. Pergola, and Peter D. Mackie represented Tambone Corporation in the transactions. Meredith & Grew is the exclusive leasing agent of Wilmington Technology Park.

Comprehensive arbitrator training course offered

Did you ever want to be Judge Wapner? Have you ever been called upon to settle disputes between your children, your neighbors or at the office?

Your Better Business Bureau wants you. In fact your friends and neighbors with disputes concerning their automobiles, home improvement contractors, furniture, furnace repairs or the corner dry cleaner need you to hear their case and render an impartial decision to the best of your ability.

On Tuesday and Wednesday, February 16 and 17, training sessions for volunteer arbitrators will be conducted in the Merrimack Valley Motor Inn, Route 125, North Andover, by trainers from the National Council of Better Business Bureaus. Each of the training sessions (you must attend both to be certified) will begin at 6 p.m.

One of the fastest growing and most interesting areas of dispute resolution is the Better Business Bureau's Mediation and Arbitration service. More than a thousand cases are heard each year in Massachusetts alone by persons from all walks of life. To be a BBB arbitrator you must be at least 18 years old and a resident of Massachusetts.

If you are interested in consumer affairs and better business consumer relations call 1-617-685-7187 and reserve a place at this training session.

BBB Certified Arbitrators are only required to hear three cases a year (or as many additional cases as you can fit in your schedule).

Continental Cable takes over Greater Boston Cable

Continental Cablevision became the owner of five Greater Boston cable systems in an agreement signed January 11 between Continental and executives of Colony Communications of Rhode Island, the parent company of Greater Boston Cable Systems.

The new Continental systems, Woburn, Wilmington, Stoneham, Billerica and Burlington, comprise 30,000 subscribers and will be incorporated into Continental's Eastern Massachusetts District, headquartered in Wilmington. The Eastern Massachusetts District also serves the communities of Needham, Newton, Watertown, Wellesley, Weston, Wayland, Reading, Winchester, Saugus, Beverly, Wenham, Hamilton, Marblehead, Topsfield, Nahant and Natick.

General Manager Tony Peduto has been named to oversee all operations for the new systems. Mr. Peduto was formerly with American Cablesystems in Arlington as system manager since 1984. Administrative and customer service offices for these communities will continue to operate at 7B Wheeling Ave., Woburn.

Russell Stephens, vice president and district manager for Eastern Massachusetts commented, "We at Continental are excited about the opportunity to provide our new subscribers in Woburn, Stoneham, Burlington, Billerica and Wilmington with what we consider to be the finest cable service available today."

"I'd also like to assure these subscribers that they can depend on Continental to provide a steady and consistent enhancement of their existing cable service through the coming months and years."

Continental is the largest cable operator in New England and the third largest in the country. The company will celebrate its 25th year of service in May, 1988.

Ice sculpture contest at First Bank in Tewksbury

Local high school art students will be competing in an ice sculpture contest that will be held in Tewksbury January 28 weather permitting. (January 29 is the rain date). The contest is sponsored by First Bank and will be held on the grounds outside of the bank's building at 600 Clark Rd., Tewksbury (intersection of routes 38 and 495).

High school teams of five students and two teachers each will be competing for first, second and third place awards. Winners will be awarded funds that will be contributed to the school's scholarship funds.

Other schools entered in the contest are Dracut High School, and The Greater Lowell Regional Vocational Technical High School. The all-day event will begin at 9 a.m. and judging will take place at approximately 4 p.m. The sculptures will then remain on display until the weather deteriorates them.

"First Bank has always been supportive of local art efforts," said First Bank President Richard Main. "We look to this contest not only as a chance for friendly competition but also as an opportunity for artistic expression."

Gymnastics Saturday night

Lisa Crowley and Sarah Phillips of Wilmington and Stephanie Martino, Laura Meunier, Kelly Spencer, Krysten Cullinon and Tami Eikelboom of Tewksbury, team members of the Reading Gymnastics Academy, will be participating in a gymnastics exhibition at Reading High School's Hawks Fieldhouse, Saturday, Jan. 30 at 7 p.m.

The team members travel miles and spend hours weekly training to achieve all levels. The team is proud to have the 1987 Class I State Champion, also many others qualified for state, regional and national competition.

This is a chance to see gymnastics in a fun, non-competitive show. There will be refreshments, raffles, $3.00 adult; $1.50 child.

Pop Warner meeting

Wilmington Pop Warner is getting underway for the 1988 season. A meeting will be held Thursday, January 28, at 8:15 p.m. at the Fourth of July headquarters. Officers will be elected for the board of directors and current members and persons wishing to join the Pop Warner Board of Directors will be voted on. Anyone wishing to join the board of directors is invited to attend this meeting.

It should also be noted that the coaching applications for the players and cheerleaders for all teams will be solicited in the near future. The public is invited to this meeting. Questions should be directed to Len Howard, president of Wilmington Pop Warner at 658-9824.

Wilmington girls undefeated

The Wildcat girls' traveling basketball team to date has played a strong offense and a solid defense in defeating teams from North Andover, North Reading, St. Monica's of Methuen and Masconomet Regional.

In achieving their league leading 5-0 record, the girls have improved weekly in displaying good basic skills and have rallied from some halftime deficits to prevail in some close games.

Every win has been a balanced team effort. In their five wins the team has scored 132 points while allowing only 75 points.

In non-league action the Wildcats lost a close contest to Lynnfield in a game broadcast on cable television. The girls have also traveled to Walter Brown Arena at BU and played exhibitions at Bentley College.

The team has enjoyed the competition and is looking forward to a successful remainder of the season. Coaches Bob Sellers and Bob Fasulo are extremely proud of this new traveling team.

Ski club takes second place

The Andover Ski Club took a second place in the January 24 tri-meet against the Nashoba Valley and Sudbury Buddy Werner Ski Clubs.

Scoring victories for Andover in their age division were: Seven and under, girls, Kerry Sheehan, two, Jillian Dow, five; boys, Aaron Bellorodo, four.

Age eight and nine, girls, Hannah

Pfiele, one; boys, Jason Bellorodo, three; Nicholas Schwartz, eight; Brad Tetreault, nine, Eric Froburg, 10.

Age 10 and 11, boys, Steve Hosmer, one, Dave Poulo, two, Scott Kriz, five.

Bay State Games to showcase skiers

What becomes of the competitive, highly-skilled skier when his or her days of racing on the high school and collegiate circuits have ended? Today's masters division skier (21 years and older) has a difficult time creating a niche in the present racing scene, finding challenging and satisfying competition to keep his or her performance at its best during the ski season.

This year the Bay State Winter Games, Massachusetts' own Olympic style sports festival, will recognize and showcase these skiers with a special masters alpine competition in the upcoming Winter Games, March 4, 5 and 6 at Jiminy Peak and Bousquet Ski Areas in the Berkshires of western Massachusetts.

The Games will feature both slalom and giant slalom racing for the state's top men and women alpine racers in the masters division.

"The masters competition will be greatly expanded this year," said Barbara Long, Winter Games coordinator, "and we expect the number of entrants and caliber of talent to be representative of the great masters skiing that is in this state."

Any skier 21 years of age or over can qualify for the Bay State Games in any one of three ways:

1. Be a member of USSA and submit points
2. Show proof of winning a gold medal in a Nastar race series at Bradford Hill, Mt. Tom or Wachusett.
3. Be one of the top five male or female skiers in the Adult Ski Leagues at either Bousquet, Brodie Mountain or Nashoba Valley as of February 15, 1988.

Masters skiers will compete in four age categories - A, 21 to 30; B, 31 to 42; C, 43 to 54 and D, 35 years and over.

The masters skiing competition will highlight the overall alpine events of the Bay State Winter Games which will also bring together the state's best scholastic (high school) and open (collegiate) skiers in this multi-area competition.

Outdoors column

How to care for a fish out of water!

by Bill Conlon

The future of fishing lies in the philosophy of catch and release. "Let them go and catch them again tomorrow."

In the year 2510, people are still going to go fishing. Nothing will ever replace an outdoors trip as the best way to handle the wild-eyed stresses of modern life.

Our grandpuppies might be using swimming robot-lures that make lifelike baitfish noises, or radio reels that provide up to the minute weather forecasts, but the sport of fishing itself will never die.

But the fish themselves might, unless we're more careful today! Too many people are killing their fish by accident, and it's high time that something is said about this pointless waste of life. I saw a classic example of fish abuse on Sunday, at the Merrimack Valley Bass Masters ice-fishing derby held on Lake Mascuppic in Tyngsboro.

I caught a lovely bass (that WON, but more on that later) around 10:30 a.m. The fish flopped once on the ice (oops!) before I threw the prute into my bait bucket to stay wet, then drove off to the weighing station. No more than five minutes later the fish had been weighed and measured, then was slid head-first into a hole in the ice and released. The four-plus-pounder gave my hand an angry slap before he swam off to fight again another day.

Granted, he wasn't exactly happy about his experience, but at least the fish was strong and healthy when he was released. Except for a hook hole in the jaw, the little guy was untouched.

As I was leaving, though, I saw another angler bringing his catch in for weighing, and the poor fish didn't stand a chance. Doornail.

This angler rode into the weigh station on a snowmobile, which is fine I guess, but he was carrying his pickarel by the lower jaw. During that ride across the ice, the fish was being blasted with arctic air, and frostbitten gills are fatal -- period.

His pickarel also had a "dry" look to it. Fish slime is a protective coating, and if the slime is wiped off or dried by prolonged contact with the air, the fish is just as dead as if you'd filleted him. The fins may flip when you toss him back, but his style of swimming will be belly-up and bottom-bound.

More and more derbies are at least asking for catch-and-release fishing, which is the only intelligent way to utilize the fishing resources. Some of the arguments for catch-and-release fishing are indeed wise, including the opportunity to repeat the experience by catching that whopper again next week, letting other fishermen have the same fun you did, and keeping the fishing hot in your favorite pond in the future.

Imagine, if you will, having ten million anglers working over a 20 acre pond. If everyone kept their catch, the pond would be as barren of fish as your septic tank in about a week! A few anglers are already grumbling that Lake Attitash and Crystal Lake aren't the fishing hot-spots they once were, mostly due to tournaments and the high-pressure angling that these ponds see during contests. Even with catch-and-release rules, far too many fish die because of stupid anglers.

If you insist upon eating your catch, which is normal enough, only keep the smaller legal-sized fish, since the real whoppers are also the best breeders. The heavy-weights are better left in the pond so they can keep producing future monsters.

Better yet, stick to eating only the off-species. My all-time favorite fresh-water eating fish is the lowly crappie, or calico bass, followed closely by yellow perch. Personally I think bass have sort of a muddy taste, and I released a five-pounder this summer because a poor dinner would be a sad fate for such a magnificent fish.

Catch-and-release is the only way we'll be able to keep good fishing for years to come. But if you're going to release your catch, handle those fish with the utmost care. Here's a few little rules that might help save the future of fishing.

-- Don't let the fish dry out! Keep an extra bucket on hand for hauling your catch to the weigh station, or better yet use one of those 32-quart Coleman coolers. Also, make sure the container is full of water in advance, so the fish won't die of temperature shock upon impact with warmer or cooler water.

-- Watch those gills! A fish uses its (external) gills just the same as we use our lungs. Imagine how long you'd live if your lungs were suddenly turned into a red, frozen slush. Keep gills wet at all times.

Also, a fish that is bleeding from the gills is a goner! Save the gill-bleeders for the skillet to avoid a complete waste. Running a stringer or stick through the gills is also a death sentence.

-- Keep your hands wet! The slime on a fish keeps out disease and parasites, and your dry hands will strip off the protective covering. But if you wet your hands before touching the fish, there's a chance that damage to the slime will be minimal.

-- Take pictures instead of fish! A snapshot will last forever, but dinner is done in a half-hour. Take a picture and let the fish live, and your grandkids might get the chance to tie into a REAL monster, perhaps one that you caught as a five-pounder.

And don't be shy about correcting another angler if you see something that would end a fish's life. If it's let's go alive and healthy, you might have the pleasure of catching that same fish tomorrow.

-- Tackle Box --

On Sunday, the name Bill Conlon appeared at the top of the winner's list in the Merrimack Valley Bass

Master's derby on Lake Mascuppic in Tyngsboro. After three years without so much as a door-prize, let alone a cash award, it came as a relief to learn that maybe I'm not doing everything wrong after all.

Top prize of $200 and a trophy went to -- ahem -- me, for a four-pound, one-ounce bass, taken very close to shore on a shiner. I also received a certificate to have a fish mounted gratis by Wilder Taxidermy, but my winner still swims. (I want a bigger one for the wall.)

Bass entries took all of the five top prizes, and the tournament organizers were proud to declare that all 35 fish brought in to be weighed were released alive. (Well, sort of, anyway.) A total of 209 anglers took part in the event.

Second place and $150 went to Al Sturtevant of Lowell for a three-pound-13 bass; lucky Ron Grimard of Lowell took the $100 third AND $50 fifth places with entries of 3-pound-7 and 2-14 respectively; and fourth place and $75 went to Lowell's Charlie Brouillette for a 3-pound-5 largemouth. Trophies were handed to all five winners.

The weekend's glassy smooth ice also failed to stop the 46 anglers who signed up for Saturday's New England Bass Angling Association event on Long Pond in Tyngsboro. Top prize of $250 went to Bob Nolet of Westford whose five fish totalled five pounds even. Second place and $100 went to Bob's brother Joe Nolet, of Lowell, for a four-fish creel weighing in at four-pounds, 4-ounces. Third and $50 went to Billerica's Bob Drew for a three-fish stringer weighing in at 3-pounds-12. The largest bass of the day, a 3-pound-4 specimen, was caught by Ken Home of Billerica.

This coming weekend will be a busy one, as the Crystal Lakers will have an angling event on that pond in Chelmsford on Saturday. On Sunday, the Greater Lowell Fly Fishers will be on Lake Mascuppic in Tyngsboro, while the Club Fleur-de-Lis will be holding an event on Long Pond, just down the street. Busy day indeed!

The Eastern Outdoors Expo in the Worcester Centrum (Feb. 3 to 7) will also see the state Division of Fisheries & Wildlife awards for biggest fish on Feb. 6 at 4 p.m. by the casting pool.

The Tewksbury Rod & Gun Club's annual game supper will be held on Saturday night, from 7 p.m. until midnight, for those lucky 175 who managed to snag tickets. Activities director Phyllis Clausen said the event sells out within hours every year, and she wishes that all TR&G events could be as popular as the game supper. Music will be provided by member Doug Blevis's Southern Knights.

Tiffany Hussey of Burlington

Their agency is in Burlington

These kids became models

By PHYLLIS NISSEN

Tiffany Hussey of Burlington is all smiles and few words. She has a lot to smile about. In November, at the age of six, she was named "Miss National Photogenic" in the American Princess Pageant in Tampa. "It was fun," she says, the smiles speaking for her.

It's early Saturday morning and she's already been to dance class. Tambourines, tapping and a strong beat in the background, she waves to friends — unconcerned about the magnificent future her mother and Burlington's Joe Freeman, Director of the Dynasty Dance Studio, Modeling School and Agency there, predict for her.

You see them in ads for Jordan's, T.J. Maxx, Salad Master, Bank of Boston, Dunkin' Donuts; in magazines and catalogs; on calendars and television; to the point where if there's a kid in a scene in "Spenser: For Hire," you can assume it's a Dynasty kid.

They're on the tube and they're around the corner.

The kids and young adults hail from all over — Kristopher Ahern and Rebecca Tan from Woburn, Kelly Ann and P.J. Flaherty from Tewksbury, Susan Alger from Stoneham, Heidi Griesmer and Lisa Levo from Reading, Gregory Scarfo from Wilmington, Shaun Curtin from Burlington, and dozens of others. Even a Susie Wong, Cher and Marie Antoinette.

The attraction is simple — fame, fortune, homework that's fun, and on-the-job training. There have been no dropouts since the school officially opened in June of '86. As the name implies, Dynasty has to do with family but at the same time, it's all business.

"The name is cultural," says Freeman. "My wife Ginger is Taiwanese. Chinese legacies and dynasties are very famous and we wanted to establish ourselves in the community." Although Ginza Cheng had been a model in Taiwan, Freeman — who holds a degree in criminal justice — never dreamed the family destiny lay in that direction.

"My daughter Kim is a model and an actress," he says. She's 13 now but when she was about nine years old, she became interested in modeling. Being protective parents, we wanted

Air Force band in Stoneham

The United States Bicentennial Committee of Stoneham and the Stoneham Independent will be presenting the United States Air Force Band of New England in a free concert. "Symphonic Winds" will appear Saturday, February 6, 8 p.m. at the Stoneham High School Auditorium.

"Symphonic Winds" is the 37 piece concert band of the United States Air Force Band of New England. Stationed at Pease Air Force Base in Portsmouth, New Hampshire, this exceptional performing unit brings top-flight entertainment to audiences throughout the Northeast.

Programs are chosen to highlight the diversity of America's musical cultural heritage, combining many different types of music. A typical evening concert might include light classical selections, an instrumental soloist, several contrasting marches, a featured vocalist, selections from the great favorites of Broadway, Hollywood and the current popular repertoire, plus a stirring patriotic finale. These concerts follow the example of the world-famous "Boston Pops" with the emphasis on variety, quality, and the highest standards of performance.

The members of "Symphonic

Winds" are highly talented musicians who bring to each concert the skill and knowledge gained from years of study and performing experience. Many hold music degrees and have studied with eminent teachers. They exemplify the pride and professionalism of today's Air Force.

The concert by the Air Force Band of New England is free

Opportunities For Youth

Youth and Government

The North Suburban proudly offers an exciting new National YMCA program uniting youth and government. We invite High School students with an interest in political structure and governmental policy to participate in simulated legislative hearings in the State House, as well as spend a weekend at the Parker House in Boston. With other YMCA youth, these teens will have the opportunity to write their own bills in prelegislative hearings and debate the merits of proposed policy. There's nothing quite like first hand experience, and this one is an intense and exciting exposure to "almost" the real thing!

For more information contact: Mike Manna
Participants must be YMCA members.

Karate — for all ages!

Karate is an art form for health, confidence and self-defense; a chance for all to extend their limitations. For youth it fosters pride. For adults, a refreshing change of pace from a hectic world. For women, especially, it provides freedom from fear of violence. Size, age, and physical strength are not important; this ancient art form has something for everyone. Japanese Shotokan style karate is taught by black belt instructors. Family rates available. Member of the North American Karate Federation.

FREE ACUPUNCTURE LECTURE

Acupuncture is a method of healing the body that originated in China approximately 5,000 years ago. It is a natural healing therapy in that it works to create a balance in the body's function.

A free lecture on acupuncture will be held at Franklin Street Medical Associates, 139 Franklin St., Stoneham, on Wednesday, January 27 at 7:30 p.m. A question and answer period will follow. Reservations are necessary.

For reservations and/or information, call 438-6132.

TRAINING IN RAPE CRISIS

Rape Crisis Services of Greater Lowell, Inc. will be offering a comprehensive training program beginning February 16. This course is open to people who are interested in volunteering for RCSGL, as well as all victim service providers.

The program is designed to cover the medical, legal, social and psychological issues of rape and abuse with specific issues such as child sexual abuse covered in depth.

The training will be held in LGH's Hanchett Board Room Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 7 to 10 p.m. until March 15 for victim service providers (24 hours) or until March 17 for prospective volunteers (30 hours). There is a $30 fee. Scholarships are available. For more information and registration, call RCSGL at 452-7721.

CRAFT FAIR TABLES FOR RENT

The women's fellowship of the First Congregational Church of Stoneham is now renting approximately 35 tables for its Saturday, March 19, Craft Fair to be held from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the church hall which is located at the corner of Central and Church streets, just outside Stoneham Square.

On Craft Fair day the Amica Class women's fellowship will host a coffee time and luncheon for exhibitors and shoppers. There will be extensive publicity for the event and ample parking in the immediate area of the church for the large crowd of shoppers that attends each year.

The rental fee is $25 per table. Call Mrs. Hurley at 438-1551 or Mrs. Flynn at 438-5697. They'll be happy to mail you an application and supply additional details.

NORTH READING HAND-CARVED DISPLAY

The Flint Memorial Library is pleased to announce the displays for January. A selection of Lorraine Redding's hand-carved birds and decoys is now on display in the case opposite the circulation desk. Ms. Redding, a local artist who also paints and does needlework, has only been doing wood carving for the past two years. Her interest was aroused by painting some purchased decoys, following which she went on to study wood carving with Jim O'Leary and has relief with Pat Cosman. Ms. Redding is a member of the Wakefield Arts and Crafts Society and the Reading Craftsmen.

A collection of dolls of many nations is in the case located adjacent to the fiction collection. These dolls belong to Tara Debold and were purchased for her in the various countries represented by the costumes.

"TOMORROW'S MONEY TODAY" - Seminar by WRKO's award winning Attorney Steven J.J. Weisman on money matters and financial planning for today and tomorrow. Marriott Copley Place, Boston. 2 to 6 p.m. - $90. Call Carole Griffin collect at (413) 253-9359 to register or for further information.

LANGUAGE VOLUNTEERS

The DIAL Program needs you! Can you spare a few hours a week to help others? If you are interested in helping people from other cultures and can spare a few hours per week, why not join our volunteer program.

The DIAL Program is a non-profit agency devoted to providing immigrants, refugees and linguistic minorities with English language skills and cultural orientation.

Volunteers are men and women of all ages, from all walks of life, who are willing to tutor on a regular basis. Tutor training is provided by the DIAL Program. Volunteers teach a minimum of two hours a week and can work at Hanscom Air Force Base or in the local communities. This can be a satisfying teaching and learning experience. Call the DIAL office at 377-2026 for more information.

MIDDLESEX CANAL ASSOCIATION

The winter meeting of the Middlesex Canal Association will be held Sunday, February 7 at 2 p.m. at the Unitarian/Universalist Church in Chelmsford Center.

Mr. Jeremy Frankel, a canal specialist from England, will describe and show slides of canal preservation and restoration work in the United Kingdom. He has been active for over 15 years with the Waterways Recovery Group, which has restored hundreds of miles and canals in Britain. Mr. Frankel is part owner of an operating canal boat. He is presently completing an extensive tour of North American canals and the Panama Canal.

EX-SPOUSES AND THE STEPFAMILY

A lecture-discussion entitled

"The Ex-spouse Relationship: How to Reduce Conflict and Strengthen the Remarriage" will be held on Monday, February 8, at 7:30 p.m. at the Institute for Remarriage and Stepfamilies, 259 Walnut St., Newtonville, Room 14.

This lecture is sponsored by Riverside Family Institute, a non-profit organization. Questions and answers and discussion will follow. For more information, please call 964-6933.

to know what the whole thing was all about."

Kim graduated from a modeling school in Boston, coming in third in the country in a television commercial competition, at which point doors opened for her. "In three or four years, she did about 30 or 40 print work jobs and a few national commercials and TV shows," says Freeman. "That strengthened our interest in the business and we just took it from there." Son Scott has appeared in ads but at this point, prefers soccer.

"Ginger and I both felt we would like to get more kids involved in something so many of them have dreams of — seeing themselves in print or on TV," he continues. "I think all mothers tend to feel 'my daughter or son can do that, my kids are cuter or more handsome than the ones on TV.' We thought Burlington was in need of a couple of things. One was a good solid dance program."

Opening as a dance school, Dynasty attracted about 160 students the first year, 350 this year. It uses local talent who teach the fundamentals. "The kids have a good time but they learn something," says Freeman.

Immediate success in dancing allowed the Freemans to pursue their real interest — a suburban modeling school and agency. "You wouldn't believe how many people don't want to drive into Boston," he says.

Licensed by the state and the Department of Education, the Dynasty Modeling School graduated, in its first year, about 110 kids, ages four through 19. "We don't intend to make kids Christie Brinkleys," he says. "I can't overemphasize the confidence factor. Confidence is the mainstay. If you have it, it's going to help you through your life no matter what you do. We're trying to instill and bring it out in each individual so they can utilize it to their best advantage."

"We also cover poise, charm, personal development, etiquette, the social graces, what to do with hands and feet, exercising, how to do a proper runway, how to hold shoulders back, hair care, and makeup," he continues. "It's a finishing school for those who just come here to build their poise and personal development, and an opening into a career for others that have the ability to go on."

"Photo posing is another area we get into," he says. "Modeling and photo posing are probably 70 percent psychological. You have to be psyched into what you're doing; otherwise, the stress of it all comes into play and people can see that. When I look at contact sheets or proofs, I can definitely tell right away whether or not somebody was happy with or into what they were doing."

"We're very proud of Tiffany because she is one of our four state pageant winners this year," he continues. "Tiffany is the type of little girl who has a very good personality and that's one of the keys in the modeling business," he says. "Workmanship is one of the things we look for, how kids react to others and how well they're going to work with a client. Their confidence comes out when they compete in a pageant or for a job. Competing really helps them."

"These kids are real nice kids, too," says Denise Hussey, Tiffany's mother. "She doesn't talk about the pageant. They're all happy for each other even when they compete against each other. They're really good friends."

"They're regular kids who go home and grab their Barbie dolls and GI Joes," says Freeman. "Kristopher Ahearn who just turned six is probably our top little boy, and he's from Woburn. The kids will come in here with their little cars and they'll run them up the desk. They're just typical kids."

"Tiffany has completed our program for ages three to seven. It's 10 weeks, 10 hours. The older kids come for 14 weeks, 28 hours. We just try to identify whether or not the child has the ability. Without it, there's no sense getting into a lot of money or a longer program."

As homework, even the youngest practice a favorite television commercial, write and record their own, make collages of fashions and magazine ads that attract them. In class, chins up, shoulders back, speaking clearly about what's on their minds, via video tapes and critiques, they prepare themselves to audition.

The students receive report cards and during the last session Freeman gets involved, letting parents know where they can go from there. For those who have the ability, desire and stamina to pursue a modeling career, the Dynasty Modeling Agency can help.

"People need to apply to the agency," says Freeman, who wants all parties to understand clearly exactly what they're getting into, before they make a commitment. "I usually spend about an hour talking to each and every person who comes into the school. We want to be able to give kids the opportunity to fulfill their dreams. It's there — it just needs to be explained and we take the time to do that."

The agency is basically a "marketing-type venture." Through composite photos, Freeman's clients choose the models they'd like to audition. As the "new kid on the block," he scurries constantly to get the word out that his models exist. "I deal with casting companies in Boston, advertising agencies, and stores directly," he says. "Right now, I've got a clientele list of about 275 who work for individual companies and make the actual decisions on who should be auditioned."

The model's portfolio is the basis for major decisions and can be the source of multiple problems for those who don't know what they're doing. Freeman is passionate about the need to deal with a reputable agency. "There are some misconceptions in this area," he says. "A lot of people think of big dollars but we can actually do a good quality portfolio for less than half of what you'd spend in Boston."

"In the suburbs we don't have that high city overhead," he continues. "We have a list of photographers in this area where we send the kids. Agencies in Boston sometimes utilize these people, and they're the best you're going to find anywhere." The Dynasty photographers put their names on their work, insuring quality and pride all around.

"People should be extremely careful about how they spend their money for a portfolio," he says. "Some places are doing a terrible job, giving modeling a bad name and producing garbage — it's a sin. The card is going to make or break you. It's going to get you in the door. The agent makes the connections but the photo has to sell."

"Modeling has its ups and downs. It's a tough business," he says, describing the experiences of Burlington's Keith McCarthy with this autumn's T.J. Maxx commercial. It took three days to film 30 seconds. McCarthy earned $1,000 for the spot, close to $5,000 on residuals because Chicago, St. Louis and other parts of the country picked it up. Ten percent goes to the agency.

Thanks to personal interviews and computers which store all the vital statistics, Freeman knows his kids well and they understand that there are no guarantees. "That's the first thing we tell them," he says. "The odds for auditions are low. If you get two jobs out of every 10 you go for, boy, you're doing extremely well. That's reality, and that's what I base everything on and why I feel we've been very successful."

Success is a combination of hard work and the luck of the draw. "We need all different looks — redheads, freckle faces, Orientals, blacks — but sometimes looks are not everything," he says. "I don't send my kids somewhere with their parents unless I know who I'm dealing with. I check out my clients so I've gone to auditions — and they're not all glamorous. They might be in a warehouse or a studio. The child who fits the clothing best sometimes gets the job but most of the time, the kids under 12 just need to be photogenic."

In less than a year, Dynasty has done about 32 television commercials, five or six of them national. Kristopher Ahearn has done a Bank of Boston commercial and a Japanese movie for Channel 2. Lisa Levy has worked for Salad Master. The face in the Dynasty ad, Kelly Flaherty, was featured in the May '87 "Woman's Day" ad for Chocol'Art Molds, shot in Woburn. Her brother P.J. can

ARE YOUR ALL-SEASON RADIALS LOSING THEIR GRIP?

Kelly Builds An All-Season Radial Line That Maintains Full Traction For The Life Of The Tire.

THE SECRET'S
SHOULDER

Most manufacturers support their shoulder tread elements with tie-bars or humps. As the tire wears to these supports, it loses most of its shoulder traction — a critical area for all-season grip.

Kelly's aggressive shoulder tread elements are engineered to full tread depth. No humps. No loss of grip down the road.

Come see our complete Kelly all-season lineup today. And get a grip on all-season performance.

Woodchips

By ANTHONY MANCONI

My Uncle John Shea of North Reading is now a resident of the Chelsea Soldier's Home. His pal, Rowan Fitzgerald, went up to see him last week and said, "Hello, John, how are you feeling?" "What did you say?" John asked. "How are you feeling?" "What did you say?" "Hey, what the heck is the matter with you, are you getting deaf?" "No," exclaimed John, "but I've been here for three weeks without a drop to drink and your breath is like a breeze from heaven!" Patricia Millward of Tewksbury and Dick Midwood of Reading were there with Girl Scout and Boy Scout troops, along with troops from Massachusetts, New Hampshire, and two troops from Vermont. They took part January 16 and 17 in operation "Polar Bear," which was run by Friends of Scouting. They arrived at Camp Nobscott, and the competition to win ribbons for their respected troops started right off. The purpose of this program was to teach winter survival. Patricia Millward and Dick Midwood are personal friends of Woodchips.

Albert Stewart of North Reading is a "King of the Road." Al drives one of those mammoth 18 wheelers, backing it in ever so smoothly, just kissing the loading platform. "How do you do that, Al?" I asked. "Power steering, power brakes and the power of prayer," he replied. Al's lovely wife Patricia is an R.N. with the Visiting Nurses Association.

Sign on a Vermont farm fence: "If you intend to cross this field, you better be able to make it in 10 seconds — the bull can do it in 12.

You can count on receiving these greetings from these friends of mine: George Guyette, "Hey, man, what's happening?" Wayne Higden, "What's new?" Richard Hamel, "How they going?" and of course, the common "Hi."

Folks, how do you end a telephone conversation? Here are some I hear often. "So long, thanks for calling." "I'll be seeing you." "Take care, I'll be talking to you." And George Gould's favorite, "Buzz off, buzzard!"

Joe Louis was one of the greatest boxing champions. He was once asked, "Joe, of the many fights that you've had in your career, who would you say hit you the hardest?" Joe was fast on his feet but slow to speak, but his answer came quick as a flash saying, "The Internal Revenue Service." The ruler of Russia was called the Czar, his wife was known as the Czarina and their children were known as the Czardines.

Woodchips congratulates

Peggy Quinn of Anderson-Driscoll Insurance, Dr. Bob Krueger of Polyvinyl Chemicals, Donna Wayman of Casalot Real Estate, and James F. Cain of Fred F. Cain, Inc. who were recently elected to the board of directors of the Wilmington Chamber of Commerce.

Kelly Halley of Wilmington is currently enrolled in the Hallmark Institute of Photography. She plans to open her own studio upon graduation. The only obstacle you may have is that because you are as pretty as a picture, many young women having their pictures taken will expect to look as beautiful as you.

Frank Mazzoni told me, Woodchipper, you look like a walking passport picture. "Good morning, how are you?" I asked a woman shipping in DeMoulas. "I'm fine, but why do you ask, I don't know you?" Taking a closer look I realized I had made a mistake. "I'm sorry," I said, "You look like 'Hell-en Green.'" "I'm sorry, too," she replied because I look like "Hell-en Brown, too!"

Winchester Healthcare Management, Inc. recently held its first annual meeting. Sumner R. Andrews, chairman of the Board of Directors, welcomed three new directors. They are Richard C. Ockerbloom of Winchester, executive vice president and general manager of the Boston Globe, Frank E. Markiewicz of Woburn, vice president of the Suburban National Bank of Arlington, and John Callan of Wilmington, attorney. A handsome young doctor at the Winchester Hospital told a pretty nurse, "Marry me, you're too beautiful for Wards."

My Aunt Nora told her doctor that she gets up every morning and is dizzy for a half hour, and then she's alright for the rest of the day. "The remedy may be," he said, "for you to get up a half hour later."

A lawyer was ushered into the pearly gates ahead of a number of people waiting their turn. The keeper of the keys explained to him that it was because of his advanced age. "What?" he exclaimed, "I'm only 45 years old!" "Not according to our records," replied the master of ceremonies. "The number of hours, days and weeks that you have charged your clients in researching and preparing their individual cases makes you at least 150 years old. Lies, lies, lies, that's all you've been saying about me in your column." The newspaper editor smiled and said to the politician, "There isn't anything to worry about then, it's when I write the truth about you that you should run for cover."

A custodian at the Woburn City Hall was standing on a stepladder adjusting a clock on the wall. "What's the matter?" Bobby Burns asked. "Something wrong with the clock?" "No," replied the friendly young man, "I'm a little nearsighted, and I always climb up on a ladder to get the correct time." Bobby said to himself, "I wonder what wound him up today?"

John Barbas of Arts and Crafts told me that I should join the Woburn Irish American Club. I told John that my rule is, never join any club that would have me as a member. I'm eligible because my mother was an O'Donnell and my father was from Sardinia, Italy. (I can almost hear a wise guy reader ask, "Do sardines come from there?").

I saw and heard Father Charles Anadore of St. Barbara's Church, Woburn, celebrate Mass on TV on Sunday, January 10. I have never met this wonderful man of the cloth, but I've heard so much about him. Larry Ahern, Capt. Dan Gately and a hundred or more have told me about this charismatic, charitable and compassionate shepherd who not only preaches the gospel from the pulpit but lives it 24 hours a day.

It's been 10 years but I have finally forgiven Larry Ahern. I went out to the parking lot after a St. Patrick's Day party at the Woburn Elks and was aghast to find that someone spray painted my car a Kelly green. I rushed into the Elks hall and shouted,

"Aw right, who's the wise guy who painted my car green?" Six foot four Larry Ahern towered over me and said, "I did, what are you going to do about it?" "Oh nothing," I meekly replied, "I just came back in to tell you that the first coat is dry."

Town Meeting time is here for many towns in Middlesex

County. I remember seeing a sign posted on the town hall bulletin board saying, "Because of a long agenda, speakers are respectfully asked to limit themselves to five insults, or two minutes, whichever is shorter."

Alan Slates of North Reading has been appointed district sales manager of Copier Products for the Spaulding Company.

Danielle Libertini was one of the runners in the 2 1/2 mile relay for North Reading league relays on January 11.

Short Takes

by Rochelle Flynn

Good Morning, Vietnam is little more than a showcase for the comedic talents of Robin Williams, who shines as the disruptive disc jockey who shook up Southeast Asia with his controversial radio shows. However, there is almost no plot to encase William's brilliant performance, so about halfway through you are ready to pack it in. One wonders why this man continues to appear in mediocre movies when his gifts seem more suited for a concert film. Rated R. *

For Keeps is a miserable little drama with comic undertones that fails to be funny. It's supposed to be a realistic tale of teen pregnancy, but is about as true-to-life as an Afterschool Special. Molly Ringwald plays the expectant superteen who manages to do it all, get married, graduate from high school, have a baby and go on to college. One wonders if the writers have ever experienced life in this century. Rated PG-13.

The Whales of August is not unlike a sentimental Hallmark commercial. It gives you a nice slice of life, but no story around it. Bette Davis and Lillian Gish play two aged sisters bickering through what may be their last season together at Gish's Maine cottage. The problem is that the dialogue is trite and the transparent storyline is almost devoid of plot. These two movie legends deserved better. * 1/2

Batteries Not Included is an amalgamation of nearly every fantasy, sci-fi flick threaded through a projector in the last 10 years. The acting is fine, and while it is nice to see Hume Cronyn and Jessica Tandy together again, it isn't worth putting up with this sickly sweet story and cloyingly cute aliens. Rated PG. * 1/2 stretch for Goldie Hawn and quickly dissipates into a silly gigglefest as she plays out a tired story of a rich amnesiac thrust into a life of poverty. Kurt Russell tries to reprogram the spoiled Hawn into a motherly housewife, but despite the happy ending, this movie is no sunken treasure. Director Garry Marshall deserves a lot of the blame for this cliché-ridden, tasteless "comedy." Rated PG. *

Throw Mama from the Train is a funny take-off on Hitchcock's Strangers on a Train with Danny DeVito as the childlike victim of a boorish mama he's just dying to kill. Enter Billy Crystal, a writer suffering from a huge mental block, thanks to the plagiaristic shenanigans of his ex-wife. This becomes a very funny movie as the bumpy paths of these two losers cross. Rated PG-13. * * 1/2 be seen on television as a member of the family tuned in to WBZ-TV. The public service spot about the boy who had everything, including AIDS, features a Dynasty model. To date this year, Freeman has gotten 25 people on "Spenser."

His models have also worked at the Bayside Exposition and World Trade Centers. "It's not New York or Los Angeles where it's really busy all the time but there's work available," he says. "Recently, we've been going after some stores who advertise but don't use live models. We're trying to sell them a package to get these kids out there to be seen. It's just as economical to use a live model who's going to get people to take a second or third look."

Preteens and teens get on-the-job training at Burlington Mall where they practice freeze modeling at the Children's Place, Up's and Down's and August Max. It's an "experience-builder," giving them an idea of what modeling is all about. They don't get paid.

The bottom line for Freeman is caution. "If I can put out any word, it's be careful what you do with your money because it's not going to come real cheap and you might as well do it right." The main theme is knowledge. "I can't stand kids coming in with portfolio shots taken by someone who really didn't care. The kids are not numbers here. All these kids are special."

"I don't take into the agency every person who walks in the door," he says. "I could be a millionaire if I did that. I don't have hundreds of kids — I have photogenic, quality kids, and I'm taking the time to build on that because I plan to be here 20 years from now."

With an outstanding record where it counts — making parents happy and getting kids work — the Dynasty School of Dance and Modeling, in less than two years, has met its goal of becoming an established community resource.

Twenty years from now — why that's right around the corner! Freeman already has an album bulging with unsolicited photos of babies, posing, playing, doing their things, passing the time until they're three years old and can enroll as future princes and princesses in the course of their parents' dreams, in Burlington: "Basic Modeling and TV Commercials for the Little Ms. and Mr."

From Bluegrass to Survival!

By William Pacino

BILL MONROE AND THE BLUEGRASS BOYS COME TO CAMBRIDGE

An exciting evening of music is scheduled for Sunday, February 7, at 7 p.m. (one show only) when the Boston Bluegrass Union brings Bill Monroe and the Bluegrass Boys to Paine Hall, on the Harvard University campus.

Monroe, who crafted this unique musical style fifty years ago, has assembled a first rate group of musicians to perform authentic Bluegrass music. His powerful and bluesy mandolin playing is complemented by soulful singing, explosive banjo picking, energetic fiddling, tasteful acoustic guitar work, and the clean rhythm of stand up bass to personify this genre which he has made famous world wide.

Opening the show for Bill Monroe and the Bluegrass Boys is Boston City Limits, featuring vocals by guitarist Chris Jones and mandolinist Howie Tarnower, as well as the championship banjo picking of Hiro Arita, the creative sounds of well known local fiddler Ruthie Dornfeld, and the solid bass playing of Eric Levenson (formerly with Joe Val and the New England Bluegrass Boys).

Tickets are $10 in advance, $12 at the door, $13 for VIP tickets (first five rows-center), and are available at Sandy's Music and by mail from the BBU. For further information, call 461-1549 or 661-0214.

SNOW TRAIN TO THE BERKSHIRES

Advance purchase discount prices are in effect through February 10 for the specially-chartered, "Snow Train" railroad excursion to the Berkshires on Saturday, February 20. This annual

"Snow Train" is sponsored by the Massachusetts Bay Railroad Enthusiasts, Inc., as Bill Crawford, president of the organization announced.

The diesel-powered, specially-chartered AMTRAK excursion train, dubbed the "New England States Limited" will depart Boston's South Station at 8 a.m. and will make passenger stops at Back Bay, Wellesley, Framingham (West Natick), and Worcester, enroute to its final destinations of Pittsfield, Massachusetts and Albany, New York.

According to Crawford, Mass. Bay Railroad Enthusiasts' Fall Foliage trip to the Connecticut shore in October was so successful that this trip was scheduled by popular demand. Passengers can sit back and relax, away from the bustle of the city aboard this Winter Fun Snow Train.

There will be plenty of time to browse in Pittsfield, to explore this historic Berkshire town and to visit local shops and businesses. A number of side trip options are being planned, including an old-fashioned horse drawn sleigh-ride

Coming Attractions

(weather permitting) and a visit to the famed Norman Rockwell Museum in Stockbridge.

Special, inflation-fighting fares are available before February 10: $48.95 for adults and $29.95 for children 12 years and under. Prices will increase on February 11, so early reservations are encouraged.

Additional information about this unique, one-day, energy-efficient railroad excursion may be obtained by calling (617) 277-2843 in Boston or by writing Mass. Bay Railroad Enthusiasts, Inc., P.O. Box 525, Bedford, Ma. 01730.

MAGIC MOVIE MANIA

Audiences will be gathering from afar when the Institute of Contemporary Art Cinema and Off the Wall Cinema again join forces to present the thirteenth annual Magic Movies: The Best of New Animation.

This year's animation extravaganza will offer a selection of the finest new animated films from around the world. Magic Movies 13 will showcase exciting work from Austria, Canada, Japan, the Netherlands, Sweden, the United States and elsewhere. The program will include various animation techniques, including cel, sand, and Claymation. Comic, lyric, and political themes will be included, in this wide scope of films.

Magic Movies 13 will be shown nightly, February 17 to March 1 at 7 p.m. and 9:15 p.m. at the ICA Cinema, 955 Boylston Street, Boston. Additional screenings will be held on Saturday at 11:30 p.m. and Saturday and Sunday at 4 p.m. Tickets are $4.50 general, $3.50

ICA Members, Off the Wall Members, students, and seniors.

ADULT CAPTURE THE FLAG

Indoor Survival - America's fastest growing, fun, action-adventure team sport (an adult version of Capture the Flag) is now played indoors in our area. For more information call Survival South at (617) 583-9334.

From Bluegrass to the Berkshires, COMING ATTRACTIONS has a little something for everyone. But we are always open to knowledge of events of interest to all. If you have something for us, write, care of this local newspaper and tell us all about it. No matter how cold it gets in January and February, there is plenty to do.

Bananas breathe. They inhale oxygen, exhale carbon dioxide and generate their own heat.

HEART HEALTHY COOKING CLASS - Julie Marcell, registered dietitian, demonstrates the ease of cooking a simple meal that is delicious and healthy. Marcell leads the Heart Healthy Cooking class which begins February 2 at 7 p.m. at New England Memorial Hospital.

'The Wedding Event' at Northshore Shopping Center

PEABODY - Whether it's an upcoming elaborate celebration or a small, intimate one, a special event at Northshore Shopping Center can help prepare your special event. An exposition entitled The Wedding Event, featuring over 30 different greater Northshore businesses, will take place Thursday, January 28 through Sunday, January 31.

During The Wedding Event, engaged couples may register to win a Norwegian Cruise Line honeymoon cruise to the Bahamas, courtesy of Filene's Travel Service. To be eligible for this and other prizes, entrants must be married by December 31, 1988.

A collection of merchandise gifts and gift certificates are among the "Hope Chest" of gifts to be awarded, valued over $4,000. Gift certificates toward the purchase of a bridal gown, catering, limousine and disc jockey services are among the gifts which also include weekend excursions to local hotels, photography services, tuxedo rentals and more.

This is the 10th annual bridal event at Northshore Shopping Center, but Assistant Mall Manager Victoria Cerulle indicates the program has some new enhancements. "The Wedding Event will initiate a Gift Registry at several mall stores, allowing brides and grooms to record their gift preferences

Attire for the entire wedding party will be presented on Thursday and Friday, January 28 and 29 at 7:30 p.m. and Sunday, January 31 at 2 p.m. The fashion shows will feature apparel from Jordan Marsh Co., Brides by Evelyn and Gingsiss Formalwear.

Brides and grooms will also be able to preview a wide variety of musical entertainment during The Wedding Event. Instrumental and vocal selections for both the ceremony and the reception will be presented by ten different ensembles. Dance performances will also be staged by Arthur Murray Dance Studio as part of the activity schedule.

Engaged couples are encouraged to visit the mall information booth to receive a complimentary Hospitality Kit to acquaint them with the numerous exhibits and activities, Gift Registry stores and the "Hope Chest" of gifts.

The Wedding Event is open to the public daily from 10 a.m. until 10 p.m. Exhibits and activities will be located throughout the entire mall common area.

Alcoa Aluminum opens warehouse in Woburn

WOBURN - Alcoa Building Products, subsidiary of the Aluminum Company of America, has announced the opening of its second Boston area wholesale warehouse at 110 Commerce Way, Woburn. The firm manufactures and distributes a complete line of aluminum and vinyl building products to both the remodeling and new construction trades.

According to Roland A. Goulet, manager of both warehouses, "We recognized the need for North Shore distribution in the Woburn area almost immediately after opening our South Shore location at 123-129 York Avenue in Randolph, last year." Goulet, a veteran of 40 years in the building materials business was formerly a District Manager for Alcoa Building Products for almost 20 years.

The Woburn location, like its counterpart in Randolph, maintains a fleet of trucks for delivery and sales staff calling on area architects, builders and subcontractors. "Our rapid growth is the result of the expanding building industry in the immediate Boston marketplace," Goulet said, "Both for the new home and apartment builder and for the remodeling contractor."

Donald E. Snyder, General Manager of Alcoa Building Products, said, "We are very pleased at the fine reception and rapid expansion of our facilities in the Boston Area and are committed to delivering top quality building products to our customers."
